This is Warren's World in 1965

It's a world of homework and tests, convos and clubs, hopes and disappointments, gaiety and seriousness . . . a world to which 1535 of us belong. When we aren't busy with our academic life, we participate in the activities of Warren's 36 organizations. Candy sales, popcorn sales, and clothing drives, become familiar to Warrenites as our clubs raise money and help the community.

It isn't all work. After basketball and football games we crowd into the cafeteria for some swingin' sock-hops. Warrenites also enjoy band and orchestra concerts, and the plays.

When fire damaged the northeast wing of our building, we displayed our spirit and worked together to overcome our setback. Throughout the year we showed that we were proud to be a part of Warren's world.

This is the Frame

Warren's world takes shape within a modern structure of steel, brick, and glass. The classrooms are the center of this world, with halls leading to the various parts. First, look at the 4,000 seat gym and sense the atmosphere of enthusiastic competition and spirit. Step just across the hall into the C. E. Eash auditorium, showplace for student performance and participation. Look further into the core of the building at the language, reading, and science labs, and the varied libraries, rooms made to satisfy a Warrior's curiosity.

Warren's future includes plans for a 20-room addition to this building and a second high school to meet township needs. Thus the world of Warren is ready to expand within a few years.

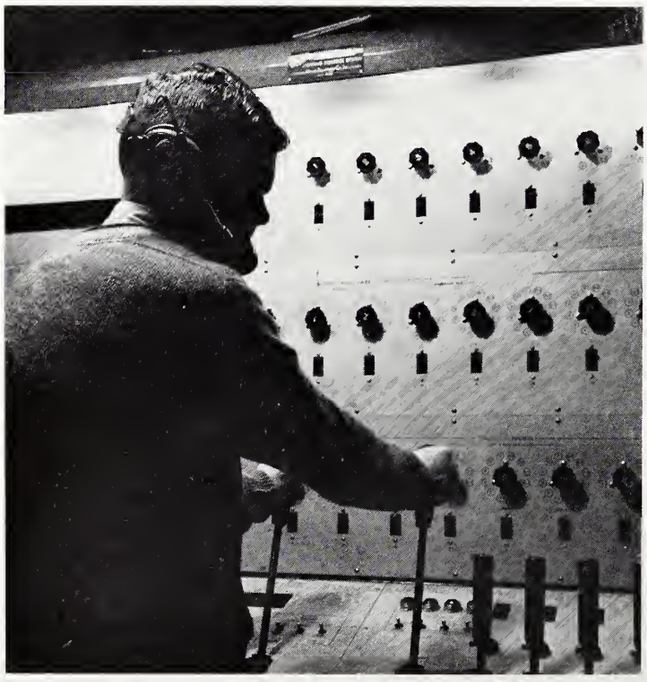
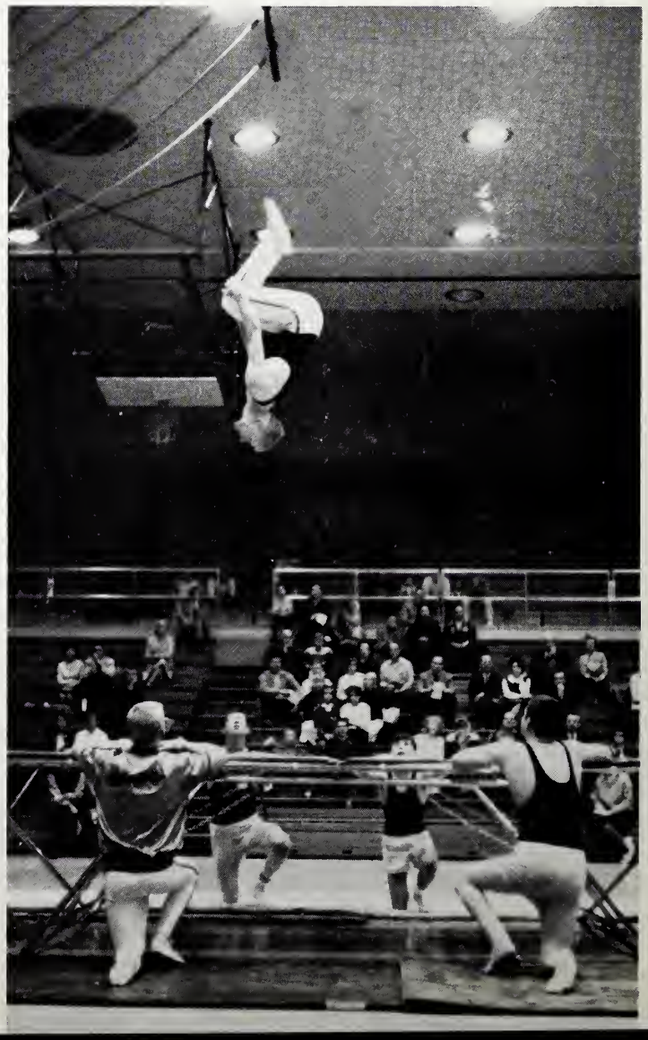
Outside Activities...What Would We Do



Unfamiliar to most pupils are the technical maneuvers of a stage production. Bill Pritchard coordinates lighting for the Senior Play.



Extra-curricular activities continue after regular school hours. Wendell Fowler executes a flip on the "tramp" at a gymnastics meet.

Where would we be without clubs? Probably most of us would be sitting in homeroom wishing that we had them. We don't have to wish, though, for the 36 Warren clubs fill homeroom and after-school hours with work and entertainment for every kind of interest.

Being in a club can mean a lot of work, but also a lot of fun. Decorating for a dance, exploring the future in a chosen profession or a cave with the science club, scuba diving at the "Y," campaigning for a Student Council office in the spring.

Some clubs broaden their work to reach those in need outside of our own little world. The food collection, sponsored by Hi-C, made Thanksgiving more meaningful to four families in the township. The kids at Muscatatuck State Hospital slept easier in the pajamas collected by the Red Cross Club.

Most of the WCHS club activities were uninterrupted by the February fire, but the Valentine Tea, an annual event, was cancelled for the first time in its 33 year history.

"Standing in the Need of Prayer!" Pupils sang this chorus at a convocation led by guest Charles King. Assisting him are Bob Heisel and Marie Shaekel, members of the Madrigals.

Without Them?

It's Tourney Time! At the English display case Joy Henard and Sara Gregory arrange pictures and newspaper clippings of Warrior basketball action, to boost school spirit.

Jincy and Nancy Troyan help to clean out the sooty lockers in the building. Greasy smoke coated everything that wasn't covered.

Fire Ignites Spirit

Warrenites thought they saw their world going up in smoke on February 8. Head custodian Paul Jennet discovered a fire at 6 a.m. in the science wing. Volunteer firemen from Warren, Lawrence, and Wanamaker quickly responded to the alarm, and shortly had the fire under control. The blaze started in a storage area off Room 214, a remodeled science lab in use for 8 weeks.

Although actual fire damage was confined to one end of the science-math wing, water and smoke caused damage throughout the building. The crisis brought out the best in Warrenite cooperation. About 25 students helped with the clean-up. More than 300 had volunteered but weren't needed. Students, teachers, and custodians pitched in to scrub floors, clean windows, scour lockers, and wipe sooty textbooks. The cafeteria staff prepared meals and snacks for clean-up crews.

Many classes had to meet in new locations. The wrestling room, student planning center, teen canteen center, teachers' lounge and dining room were temporary classrooms. Later, all but two returned to their regular rooms.

Representative of several hard-working students who volunteered to help clean up, Dirk Reek and Rick Guyer sweep water out of the hall. In addition to the damage caused by the fire and smoke, rain all day Tuesday damaged classrooms which weren't touched by the fire.

of Cooperation Among Students, Faculty

(Left) Warren township custodial staffs cleaned up debris left by the fire. (Center) An overturned wastebasket shows a before-and-after view of the floors. (Right) Students had classes wherever there was room. Mike McGuire and Dianne Britt had algebra class in the teacher's dining room. Temporary classrooms were in use for only a few weeks. Later all but two science rooms were reopened.

Firemen checked the building after the fire was out. A heat explosion during the fire shattered windows and cracked part of the outside wall. A temporary roof was erected until repairs could be made.

The fire left many pupils without lockers or books. Dave Hurt checks the paper sacks in which volunteers put sooty, greasy books damaged by the fire. Many of these had to be replaced.

Classes at Warren are rarely over-crowded since the 1535 just fill the 95 classrooms. These grammar students concentrate on first research papers and The Good Earth in a Junior English class.

From Routine to Remarkable

Most students have lockers assigned conveniently near the sixth period class. Roger Durham, Theresa Ashby, and Kay Reno make a final stop after school.

A normal day at Warren starts with the unwelcome sound of an alarm and a never-ending race to beat the clock to school by 8:10 a.m. Once there, it's a quick glance in the mirror, a trip to the locker, and then homeroom. Traditionally, every day starts with devotions sponsored and given by the Hi-C club over the P. A. system. Meetings or homework fill the period after announcements by Student Council President Jon Rood. A schedule of classes broken only by lunch fill everyday with food for fertile brains.

But few days at Warren are normal. Report cards which come every six weeks bring mixed blessings to students and mixed emotions to parents. A "monster" family named Darcy, a singer named Charles King, the Ball State band, and religious services were only a few of the variety of convocations enjoyed throughout the year.

Winning the county championship in football meant nine games climaxed by an all-school pep assembly in the gym. Whether a candidate or a campaigner, elections for cheerleader, homecoming queen, and Student Council provided all the nerve-straining excitement typical of partisan politics. These unusual ingredients in a Warrior's life, mixed with the routine of a normal day, make Warren's world hard to beat.

Center of the traditional foyer Christmas deco ations is the tree. Student volunteers helped decorate the tree, which is one of the annual Student Council sponsored projects.

Surprised? Judy DaVee and Becky Curry seem pleased with their grades. Report cards, issued every six weeks, are printed downtown at IBM service center.

...It's a Mad, Mad, Mad Warren World

The half-time cornation ceremonies at the Fall Homecoming ran over into the third quarter. Judy Varner, 1963 queen, crowned 1964 Fall Sports Queen Sue Workman as Rick Falconbury, Karen Walker, and Chip Wieland watched.

Future Leaders Analyze World Events, Act

The "sound of music" and sewing mixed as the spring musical grew closer. Peggy Haynes and Lyne Burleson help make the 61 costumes.

"Hurrah, it's snowing!" This was the reaction of most students when a 12-inch snow brought a two-day vacation and postponement of first-semester finals for the second consecutive year.

Paul Jones and Stan Taylor, both seniors, sign up for the "draft." All boys are required by a federal law to register for the selective service within five days of their eighteenth birthday. During the school year they can register in the main office.

in Warren's World

Between September and June, Warrenites were participants or spectators at quite a list of events. While we elected our queens, the nation elected a president. We were presenting "The Sound of Music" with a cast and crew of 150, while other events were changing the world. In the meantime, we somehow completed the 1965 Wigwam.

President Lyndon Johnson won a landslide victory over Barry Goldwater and carried with him every major state office in Indiana. Meanwhile, national leaders elsewhere made their exit. Russia's Premier Khrushchev, whose temper tantrums had become familiar, was mysteriously replaced by the unfamiliar team of Brezhnev and Kosygen. England's wartime statesman, Sir Winston Churchill, called by many "the man of the century," was buried in January.

As Warren's year progressed, the spacecraft Mariner III, launched in November, moved closer to destination Mars and a July landing; and Ranger 8 hit the moon. Meanwhile, in Indianapolis, less space-age complications occurred. The blizzards came like clock-work and caused postponement of both the sectional and county tournaments. While we dug ourselves out of these paralyzing snows, the rest of the nation worried over repeated crisis in Viet Nam.

"What am I bid for this piece of art?" Bob Hill auctions one of 500 pictures from the publications department at the Spring Shuffle.

Nancy Steele and Pris Strane cheer as the basketball team breaks the traditional hoop. Encouraging yells from cheerleaders and Pep Block helped boost team spirit.

Astride his horse Storm, Rick Hotz represents the Warren Warrior during Homecoming.

A Warrior's Spirit

Warrenites take pride in the appearance of their school. When snow fell in January and February, Warren's maintenance crew cleared parking lots.

Teaching her about American life, Susi Armstrong, Don Bonsett, and Phil Burris show magazines to Hiroko Tsuchiya, Japanese exchange student, at left.

Band members devote much time to practice. Larry Bartel, Dan Meggenhofen, and Jack Daniels joined other band members in August to begin practice for the 1965 Marching Warriors.

Always Shows, Working, Whooping It Up

Principal Edward Cuddy speaks to the student body at the spring awards convocation. This annual convo honors students who have excelled in certain areas.

Spirit? We've got it! We yell it from the rafters at a basketball game. We blare it from a trumpet in a stifling band uniform. We tackle an opponent with it on the football field. We sweep debris with it when a fire comes along. We pedal a bicycle with it at the Teeny Weeny 500. We sing it out in the spring musical. We let it swing at a sock hop. In general, we let this Warrior spirit show in everything we do!

It all doesn't come easily though. To a cheerleader, the image of spirit, it means six hours of practice a week. To a speech team member, it means getting on the bus at five o'clock Saturday morning. Spirit is what keeps an athlete fighting against hopeless odds. It's what makes a band member practice in the August sun for the coming football season. It's what extends the hand of friendship to our foreign student. It's what carries a cross-country runner across the finish of a two-mile stretch. It's what makes us want to solve our nation's social problems in class discussions. Perhaps a little too much of it, makes us let the referee know we don't agree with him. It's what raises us to our feet at the sound of "Rah, Rah for Warren." Spirit? We've got it and it's great.

This is Warren's

World of ACADEMICS

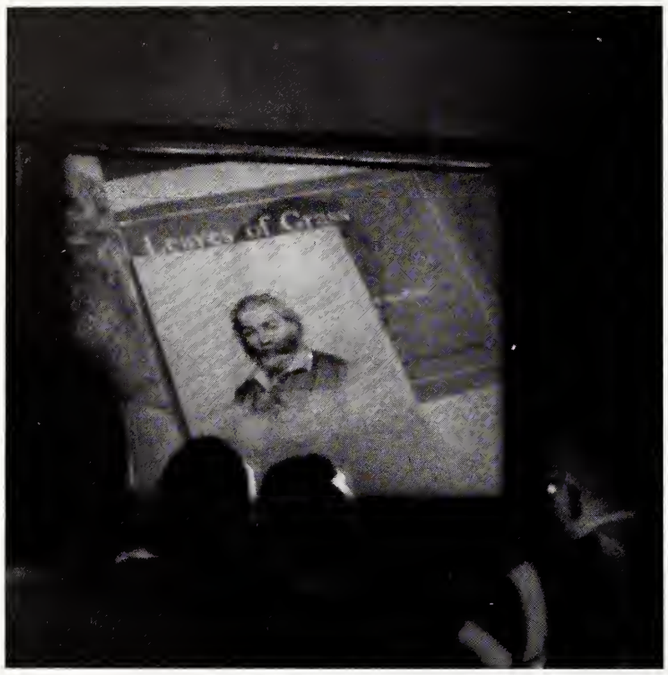
The real reason all of us are here is purely academic. Our future depends on what we learn and, to a large extent, the marks we get. Term papers, finals, and reams of reading may make us wonder whether it's all worth it; when we've worked out a proof or written a masterpiece, praise from a teacher can make that future seem brighter and the present bearable.

Plays, Themes, Speeches Instill Much Interest



With the help of movies, junior literature students were able to learn more about Early American authors and their literature.

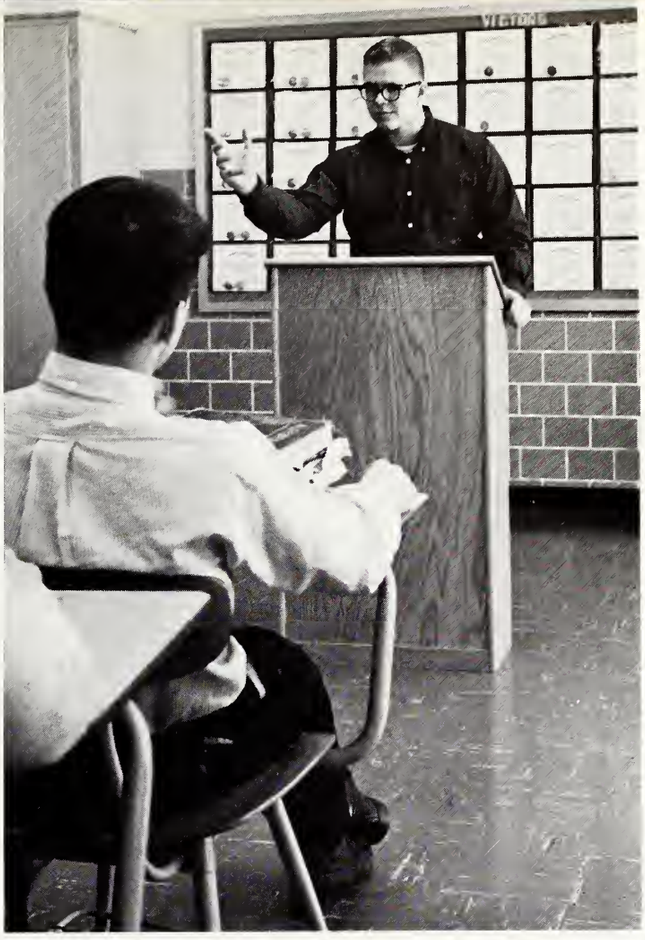
English teacher Mr. Neal Shortz and senior Shareen Cecrele check over her composition paper for punctuation or grammatical errors.

After having given a talk on Communism and its effects to a double convocation, Dr. Fern Stukenbroker, staff member of the F.B.I., grants a special interview to advanced journalism students.

to Native Language

Students graduated from Warren have had at least three semesters of grammar and literature. In grammar Warrenites review grammatical usage and its application in written composition. They also write research papers which teach them to construct an extended composition. Although Shakespeare is always important in literature, this year added special highlights to his legend as it was his 400th birthday. Julius Caesar haunts the sophomores, while Macbeth is a part of the senior reading material. Saki, Hawthorne, Browning, and other authors provide Warren's literature classes with interesting works.

Warren students may elect to take classes in dramatics, speech, and journalism. Dramatics, a new course in Warren's curriculum, delves into the areas of tragedy and comedy. Drama students become acquainted with plays, playwrights, make-up, directing, and other phases of stage production. Speech classes are mainly engaged in constructing speeches to convince and learning to write interesting speeches. Hopeful writers find beginning journalism a boon to their talents and to finding a position on the Wigwam, Owl staff, or News Bureau.



Steve Vavul demonstrates the use of gestures in public speaking in the first year speech class in room 125.

Myra Christy and Bill Kendall, interpreting "The Glass Menagerie," help the new dramatics classes become familiar with modern plays.

Sophomores and juniors spend part of their study hall time in the reading lab which is used to develop reading ability.

Interest in politics ran high during this election year. Social Studies Department head, Mr. Morris Whitmoyer, discusses the two presidential candidates and their views with Warrenites Pam Boling, Kay Reno, and Theresa Ashby.

Election, Inauguration, Arouse Interest in Issues

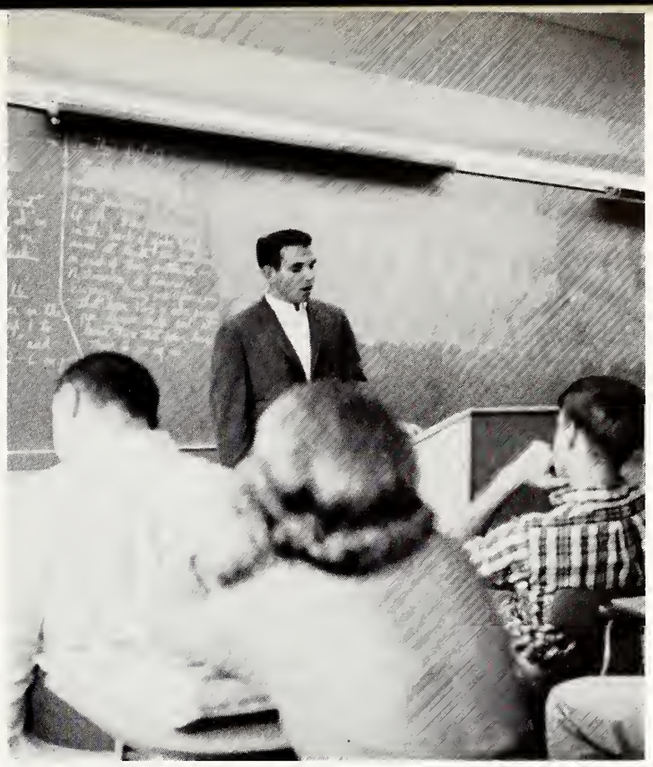
Although Webster's dictionary states that social science is "the science that deals with human society," to the students of Warren it is world history, psychology, economics, and seven other related subjects. These classes are offered to acquaint students with human society at all levels, individual, community, nation, and world, past and present. Social studies are geared to help the student undertsand himself by understanding society.

Two of the courses in the social science department are required — U. S. History and Government. In addition to studying the governmental and social changes in the U. S. since its beginning, juniors in U. S. history make special reports on famous people and events in our history. In government classes, seniors study national, state, and local forms of government and obtain practical knowledge in filling out tax forms. In some classes this year teachers have had special units, such as a mock senate or trial, as a teaching aid. This year's election, which is a required unit for at least two weeks prior to the election, added a special flavor to the social studies classes.

Shirley Rump and Glenda Melvin, juniors, begin to arrange materials for work on the Civil War display for their U.S. History Class.

World geography, world history, and international relations are classes designed to acquaint the students with the world and how the United States fits in to the pattern of events. They help the students develop attitudes and concepts necessary for effective world citizenship. These courses are taken primarily by students who plan to major in social studies. Sociology, the study of man and his social environment, and psychology, the study of the human mind, are taught at Warren to help pupils gain a better understanding of themselves as individuals and as a group.

In economics students study the principles of supply and demand and the effect it has on our economy. They also study the gross national product, the national budget, and the U. S. economy in general. Students enrolled in family living study the responsibilities and obligations of marriage in society such as ours. This course also answers many of the students questions concerning life and their choice for marriage. Cadet teaching, which is a relatively new course, is taught for the purpose of giving the students a look at a class room from the other side of the desk.



Larry Franke, '62, spoke to various social studies classes on the Peace Corps just before he left for duty in Iran.

while Warrenites Learn Duties of Good Citizenship

This mock trial with Mike Baldwin as judge and Jim Osborn as defense attorney helped explain to students in government the procedure of our U.S. judicial system.

Fire Fails to Stop Young Scientist's Enthusiasm

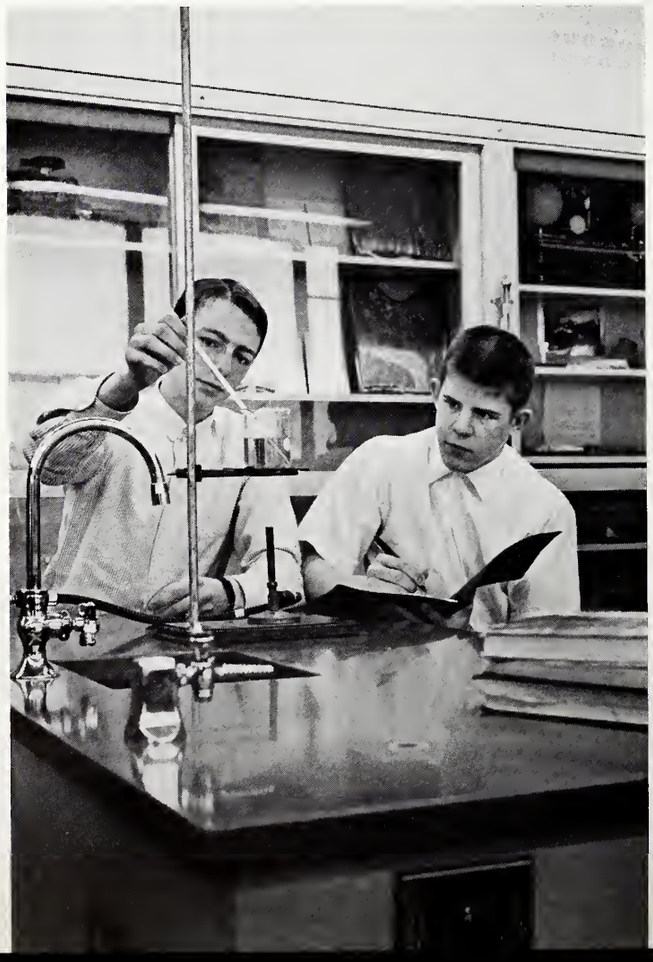
By examining the jaw of a horse, Nancy Steele and Vikki McDonald gain more knowledge about bone structure in physiology class.

As Americans become adjusted to living in a technological age such as ours, an understanding of science is a necessity. Although all students at Warren are required to take two years of science, many take additional courses because of their interest.

It is said that experience is the best teacher. Warrenites get a chance to test this theory in any of the well-equipped laboratories. Although the upper part of the science wing was crippled due to the fire in the physical science laboratory, the affected classes proceeded for about four weeks as normally as possible in make-shift classrooms. After a week of rehabilitation, math classrooms on the lower floor of the wing were re-opened, thus somewhat relieving the cramped situation. Ironically, the room where the fire started had been remodeled to be a laboratory in December of 1964.

The science department at Warren has many fields from which to choose. Warrenites interested in the physical aspects of science may elect to take physics, chemistry, physical science, and earth science. Students concerned with life science may take botany, biology, zoology, physiology, and horticulture.

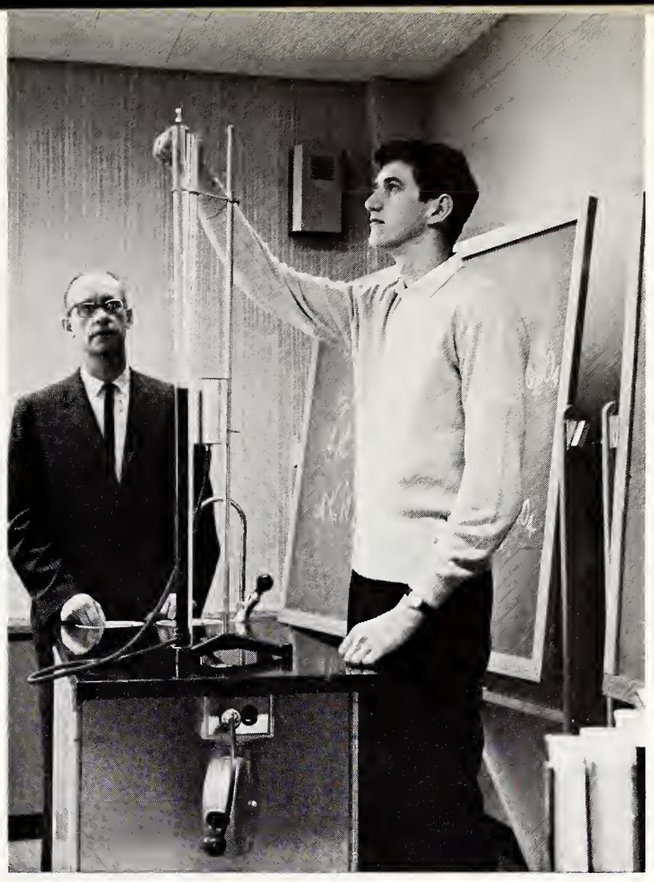
Mike Haley and Paul Clouse demonstrate an experiment for testing acids during physical science class.



Dissection is a major part of the biology curriculum. Cynthia Parsons begins work on the starfish, one of a series of different species used.

for Natural Phenomena

Ben Prior, Bob Hause, Bill Scott, and Larry Bade all are students enrolled in horticulture, and will be the future farmers of America.



The teacher's lounge became a classroom because of fire. Karl Kriegmann demonstrates the resonance of sound with Mr. Morrow.

Theresa Leonberger, Bob Kleeman, Larry Meeks, and Robin Meyer set up equipment for an experiment on hydrogen during chemistry.

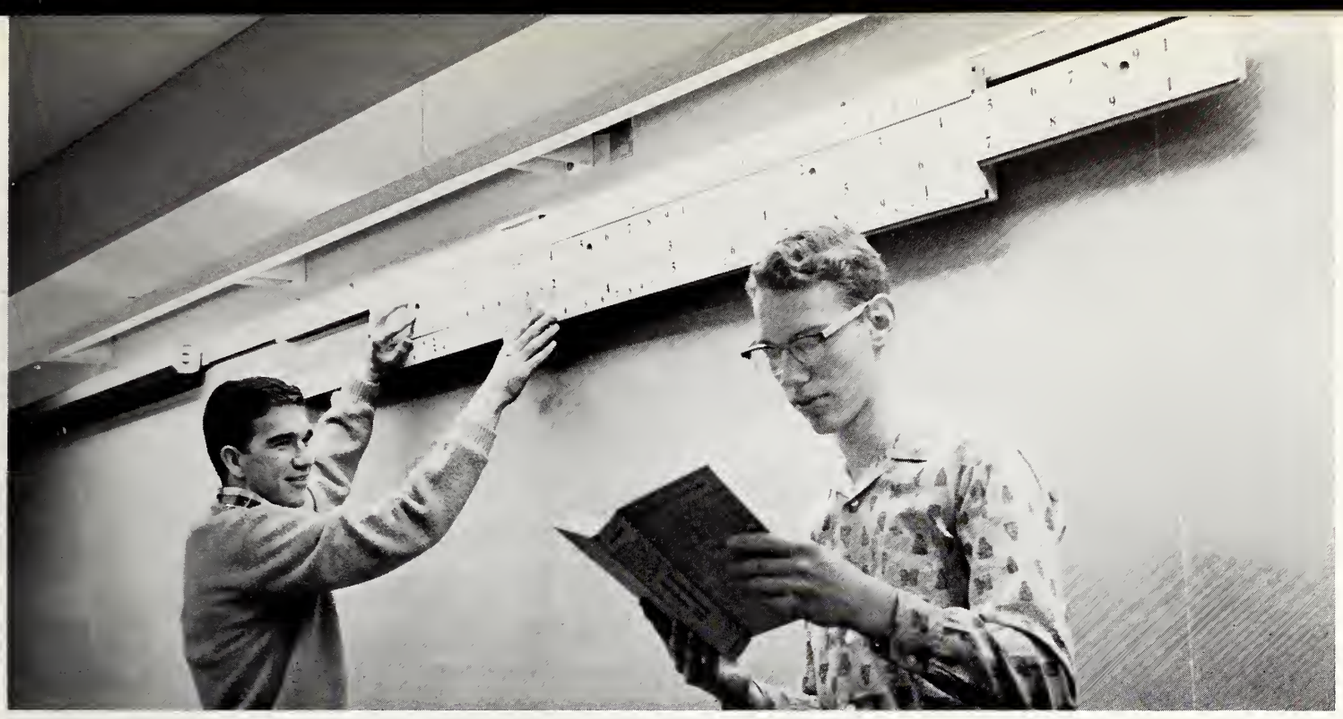
Sam Drinkut demonstrates the resistance of friction, while Kathy Doherty writes down the data necessary for the physics problem.

Mathematics student Cliff Beyler receives assistance in Algebra from Tom Roberts through the Student Council's tutoring program.

Students Sharon Frost and Carol Cooper explain to the rest of the class the statements and reasons for this geometrical proof.

Warren's Math World

The display cases throughout the school try to portray some interesting aspect of each department. Allan Merryman makes a final inspection of his work on the use of mathematics in art, an exhibit which was being displayed in the Mathematics Department.



Dan Peck and Wayne Robey use one of the visual aids of the mathematics department in helping them to solve problems in Senior Math.

Includes Algebra, Geometry, Trig, Calculus

Mathematics is a part of everything in the world. There is geometric harmony in art, and algebraic harmony in music. Math is a means to an end in many fields, such as statistics in social studies, rhythm in poetry, and tools in solving science problems. Perhaps the study of math for math's sake is not as important as the study of math for the sake of a chosen profession.

In many math courses, such as geometry, the main purpose is to teach the students to think logically. This training is important in many fields, not just math. Other courses, like algebra, give pupil concepts and theories which they can apply in higher mathematics. Although the more abstract ideals of the math courses are important, the concrete exactness of numbers and their functions is always foremost in the teaching of math, whether it is traditional mathematics or modern math.

The mathematics department is one of the major departments at Warren. There are several innovations in the math areas this year. Calculus, which is taught by Mr. Robert Ledger, was added to the curriculum. Although experimental geometry is in its third year, it is still considered a new course. Warren added three new teachers, Mrs. Carol Shorts, Mr. Gene Kinney, and Mr. William Stevens, to the areas of algebra and geometry. Along with these new teachers, Mr. Ronald Benz, Mr. Joseph Tansey, Mr. Walter Wintin, and Mr. Ledger complete the math staff.

Louie Schakel explains to fellow students Jeff Thatcher, Sue Watkins, Sandy Wilson, and Ted Moss the concept behind this geometrical design in the new geometry course for sophomores.

Students Learn Home Ec,

Most girls, regardless of their plans for the future, want to have a home and family. It is important for a wife and mother to know how to manage a home economically and efficiently. She must also be acquainted with the nutritional value of foods and preparation of interesting meals. She must understand the emotional, physical, and social development of children, and with first aid. Home economics courses provide this knowledge.

In clothing, girls make such garments as coats and formals, and learn to choose the proper materials and styles for various articles of clothing. Girls enrolled in foods classes learn to cook nutritionally balanced meals. They also investigate the earning opportunities for a housewife.

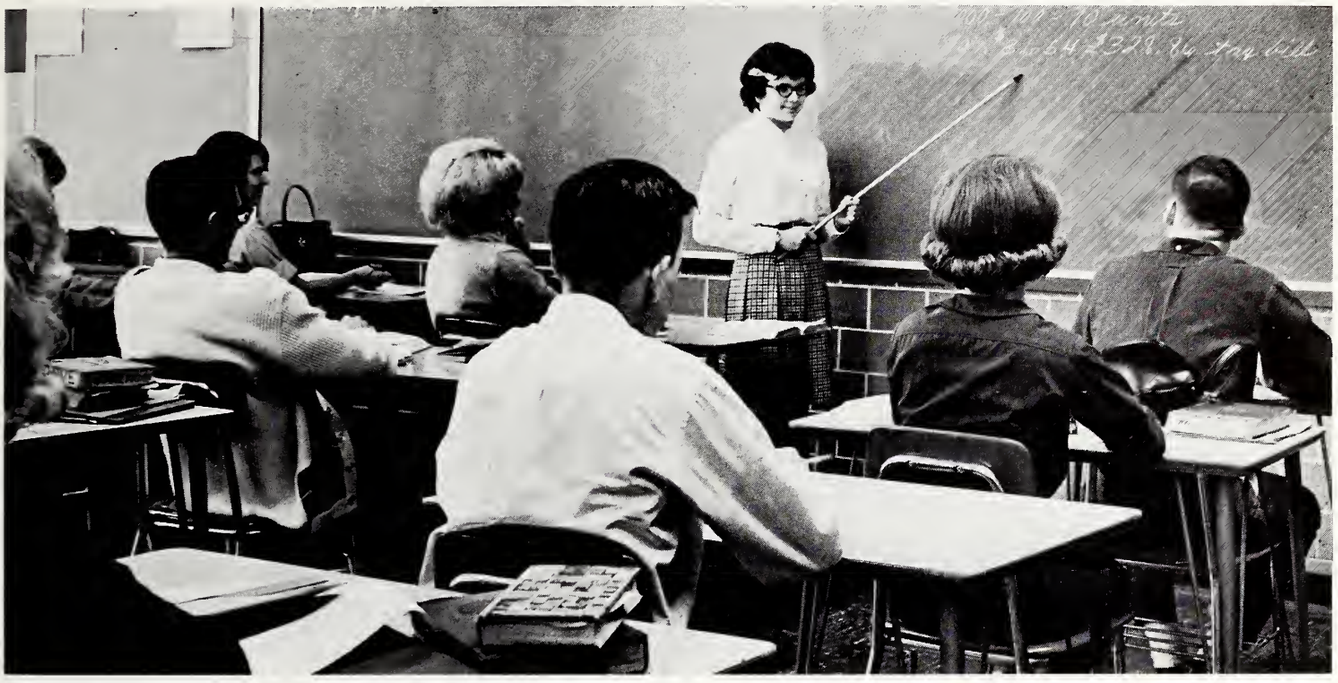
Child care students take a field trip to the Marion County Home to acquaint the girls with several different reactions in children. Housing helps to give girls the ability to choose a home and its furnishings wisely, and to decorate and care for a home properly. In consumer buying, girls study how to conserve time, money, and energy.

During clothing class, Pam Mumaugh takes the basting out of the coat she is working on for her home economics project.

Betty Skillern, Janet Franich, and Pat Taylor take time out to enjoy the dessert they prepared and served in advanced foods class.

In child care, a course to prepare girls for the future, Kathy Evans explains the procedure in giving a baby its bath.

Business Skills Regardless of Future Plans



In business math, Linda O'Haver explains the procedure in solving a tax problem, one of the many types taught to business students.

During second year typing pupils use electric typewriters. Martha Coleman works for accuracy and speed while finishing her practice set composed of various exercises.

Regardless of occupation, adults in the world today need some business understanding. To fill out tax forms, to balance a bank book, to budget a household, all require a basic knowledge of business. This type of knowledge is useful and economical in many situations. In the business classes at Warren, students learn practical application of skills such as typing, bookkeeping, and consumer economics.

Students who are interested in majoring in business in college usually take beginning and advanced courses in many of the areas which are offered. These courses give a background for study which can lead to establishing and operating a business. By taking secretarial courses, some students may be prepared for a job without higher education.

Of course, not only business majors are enrolled in the classes in this department. Most students who are planning to attend college find typing and shorthand quite a help. Typing is advantageous to students for typing research papers. Shorthand saves time in keeping accurate notes on lectures.

Language, Fine Arts Permit Students to Express

With the aid of the map, German students Jo Bradfield, Nancy Drinkut, Sharon Abrams, and Steve Deiss learn about Germany.

French students spend one day a week in the language lab where they do various developmental exercises in learning French.

In America, the language, culture, and history are primarily of English origin. However, due to the vast contact which Americans have with people of other countries, it is necessary that we have a general knowledge of these distant places. The language department at Warren provides a source for this knowledge.

Students in Spanish study the history and culture of Spanish speaking countries, and the Spanish influence in the Americas. In first year Spanish, taught by Mrs. Virginia Mueller, the emphasis is on understanding spoken Spanish. Second and third year Spanish, taught by Mrs. Lourene Dodson, stresses understanding written Spanish. Latin, instructed by Mr. Leon Thompson, introduces students to a society and language which disappeared from the earth centuries ago but which are a basis for many cultures and languages today. Mr. Thompson also teaches the new deriviatives classes.

In French the students work on gaining a speaking facility of the language. The students also study the forms of government in France and some French folk songs. The French courses are taught by Mr. Derrick Harding and Mr. Joseph Foerderer. Mr. Hans Heiser, the German teacher, presents, in addition to the regular course of study, a unit of German short stories and dramas.

Talents and Ideas

Art courses at Warren give students a chance to express their individuality by creating, observing, learning, and enjoying. They also provide a time for artists to create on their own with adult supervision.

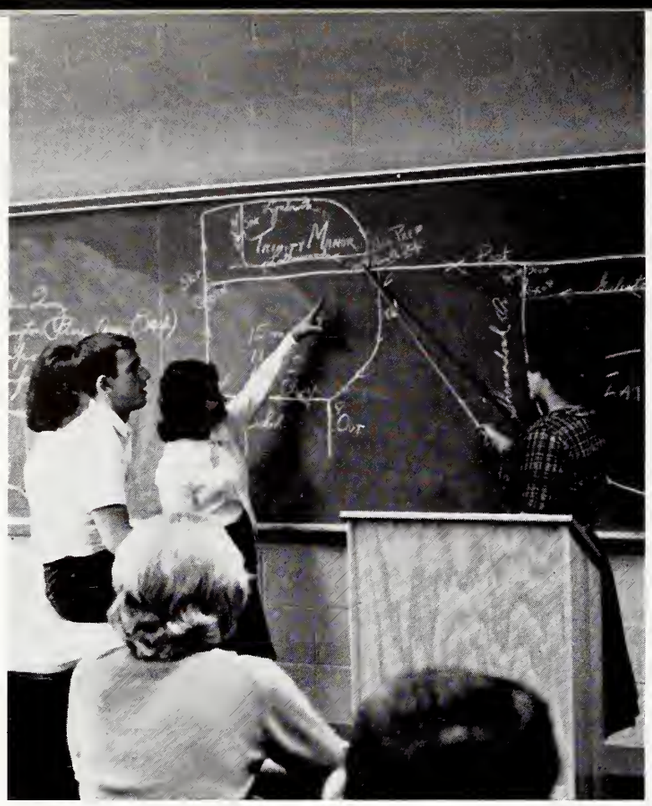
In both beginning and advanced art, students get general knowledge of the different art mediums and styles, a brief history of art, and a look at current trends in art. Commercial art, which deals primarily with advertising, gives the pupils a background for study in many areas, such as architectural and industrial drawing, advertising agencies, and the television and motion picture industries. In crafts, art students develop skills with their hand, using many different mediums, including metal, leather, clay, wood, and yarn.

Ceramics, a rather specialized crafts class, is involved strictly with clay which is fired to make it hard after it has been molded or shaped. Mr. James Fish, one of Warren's new additions to the faculty, is teaching the ceramics, beginning art, and crafts classes. Miss Julia Faucett teaches beginning art, commercial art, and advanced art.

Art students Judy McFarland and Judy Yates work on posters and other works which are used extensively by various school departments.

Oil painting is one of the main projects of the advanced art classes. Angie Miller adds finishing touches to her still-life portrait as a part of her project.

Students Gain Skills,



Rita Reno explains to Rosemary Jenkins, Steve Pinnick, and Cassandra Yates next week's driving route, a once a week routine.

Brian Waterman completes his turn in driving class, of which each of four students get 15 minutes of actual driving experience.

Although students spend a total of 32 hours in the classroom, the most important part of driver education is the required six hours of actual driving. Many of the surrounding housing divisions are daily invaded by these learning students who gain experience in residential driving as well as highway driving.

Sportsmanship Through Driver, Physical EdClasses

Driver education and physical education classes promote skills and good sportsmanship in their respective areas. Many students develop habits which they retain throughout their lives.

Physical education, which is taught by Mrs. Rosalind White and Mr. Alan Miedema, is required for graduation. Warrenites learn teamwork through such sports as basketball and speedaway, and develop individual abilities through such activities as gymnastics. The students have a chance to use the gym, which is one of the best equipped in the state, to their physical advantage.

Students in drivers' education learn not only the rules of the road, but also the right attitude for safe driving. This year the students drive three cars, one more than in previous years, and two new teachers, Mr. Donald Wasson and Mr. Jerry Stauffer, work along with senior teacher Mr. Herman Nolte.

Pam Hollenbeck and Deanna Webber recover the ball from opponent Pam Dolick in speedaway, a new sport similar to soccer.

Boys in physical education class participate in a vigorous game of touch football, part of their required fitness program.

Calesthentics form part of the daily routine of a physical education class based on the concept of producing a physically fit body.

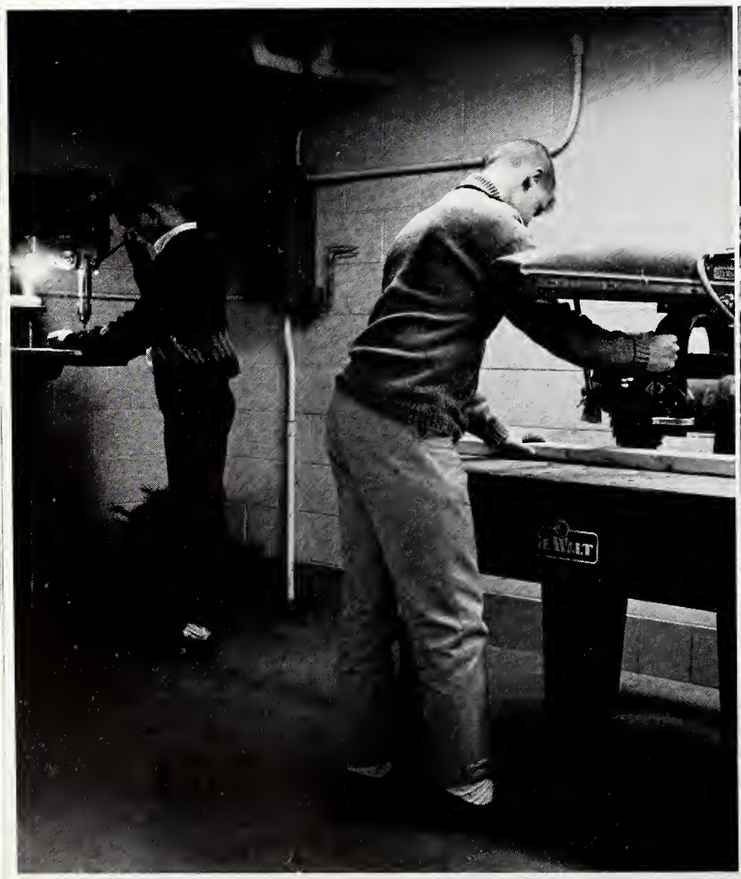
Mike Corydon, Richard Smithers, and Mr. Cuddy examine the engine donated by Mr. R. F. Conti, District Sales Manager of Ford Motor Company, to be used by transportation classes for tuning up engines.

Industrial Arts Students

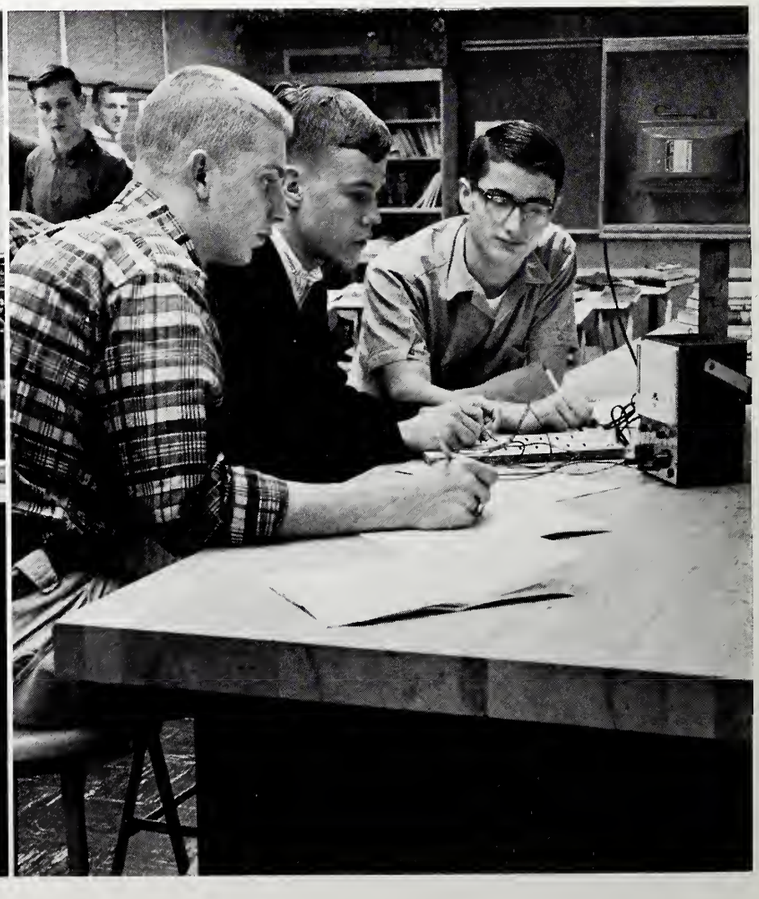
"Learn by doing" is the motto of Warren's industrial arts department, which offers courses in drafting, electronics, printing, woodshop, transportation, and machines. Here the students can prepare for future vocations. They learn from equipment as well as from books. Most indutrial arts students work on special projects to put in practice what they learn in the text.

Transportation classes this year are installing a new engine and transmission in a 1938 Chevrolet. Boys in drafting learn the principle of design, while those in architectural drafting design their own "dream" houses. Those courses prepare them for careers in engineering, and construction. Students in printing classes get on-the-job training printing the school paper, tickets, and programs. In electronics, woodshop, and students become acquainted with the different phases in the respective areas.

Ed Williams works on the drill press, a machine used for drilling holes, while Charles Weaver runs the radio saw.

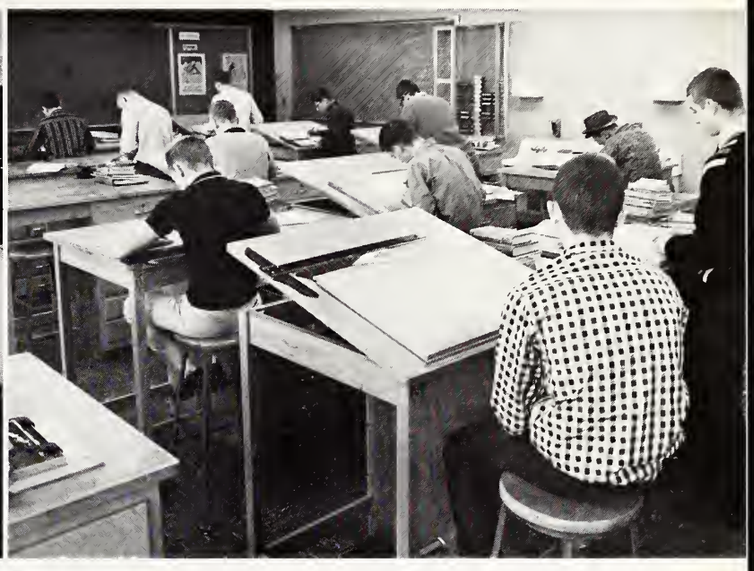


During electronics class, Don Walls, Bill Bundy, and Tom Kerns measure the different currents of electricity through the use of meters.



Learn Tools of Trade By Training, Experience

Setting type for an edition of the Warren Owl are Curtis Clark and Bill Cox, both seniors.



Students enrolled in one of the eleven drafting classes prepare for a future in architectural work.

In transportation classes, boys get experience in repairing various parts of an automobile. Phil Moore and Doug Brown work on tuning up an engine on one of the cars.

Instead of merely wishing for a hammer, Cliff Woods is making one. Boys enrolled in machine shop learn to operate the many different machines that are there for their use.

This is Warren's

World of ACTIVITIES

A major slice of Warren's world is activities. Without them, it is simply six hours of study, one uneventful homeroom period, and no time to socialize. Although planning a good meeting or program takes a lot of work and dedication, there are benefits—poise and confidence—not to mention a lot of credits by your name in the yearbook when you are graduated.

Honoraries at Warren Central are an important goal for each student. The National Honor Society accepts the students whose character, service, leadership, and scholarship show them to be worthy of this honor. The main projects of the Society are its annual spaghetti supper and the presentation of two scholarships to deserving students.

The Thespians, honorary dramatics society, are students with one hundred hours of dramatic experience. Members of this group usually play major roles in school plays, however, important people such as stagehands and make-up crews may also qualify.

The National Forensic League, N.F.L., is the honorary speech and debate society at Warren. To gain membership, a student must have received twenty-five points in speech and debate tournaments. This entitles him to the Degree of Merit. The main theme of N.F.L. is training for leadership.

Quill and Scroll, part of the international honor society for journalism students, is composed of the top journalism students at Warren. This group sells mums at homecoming and sponsors the publications banquet in the spring. It recognizes outstanding accomplishments by Warren students on the publications staffs which include the Owl, Wigwam, and News Bureau.

The purpose of the student and class councils at Warren Central is to give each student a voice in the planning of school activities.

In September, the students in each homeroom elect a Student Council representative. Among the projects planned at the weekly meetings are the student tutoring service and the sock hops after each home game. Last year's Council was responsible for the new outdoor bulletin board and the installation of clocks in the halls.

The upperclassmen are further represented by the Senior and Junior Councils, comprised of a boy and girl from each homeroom. The Senior Council selects caps and gowns, graduation announcements, and plans the Senior Prom and the Graduation Dance. Projects of the Junior Council include choosing class rings and planning the Junior Prom.

Student Council officers discuss the student tutoring program now in its second successful year. Officers for the 64-65 school year are Karen Walker (treasurer), Nena Andorn (parliamentarian), Karen McKinney (secretary), Ann Thomas (vice-president), and Jonny Rood (president).

Councils Give Students Experience in Leadership

News editor, Theresa Ashby; editor-in-chief, Carolyn Loeper; and managing editor, Richard Bothel, the "Big Three" of the Owl staff, take time out to look at two of the Owl's "mascots".

40th Year for Owl;

When the first issue of the Owl came off the press on November 7, 1924, Warren was a small rural school. On the anniversary of the Owl's fortieth year of publication, the name remained the same, but the format of one of Indiana's oldest rural high school newspapers had changed to meet the needs of what is now a large suburban school.

Under the watchful gaze of the miniature owls which adorn a shelf in the journalism office, the 20 Owl staff members worked under pressure of deadlines throughout the year to produce 19 bi-weekly issues. These students, under the direction of editor, Carolyn Loeper, were always on the alert for interesting news items. To insure a well trained staff, each had completed a journalism course to learn the techniques of news writing.

While the Owl kept Warrenites up to date on school events and aware of the activities of fellow students, another public relations medium, the News Bureau, informed those outside the school community of Warren's events through articles which appeared in local newspapers.

Joe Van Sickle, Brent Gates, John Boothby and Phil Ross, sports page editors, combine efforts to keep Warrenites informed on the results of sports events and season records.

News Bureau staff members, Deanna Spoon, Carol Fuller, News Bureau chief, Linda Paugh, Peggy Ellis and Barbara Hughes, are responsible for getting Warren's activities publicized in suburban and daily newspapers.

Associate editor, Mary Schakel; editor-in-chief, Claudia Dille; and managing editor, Judy Brown, give their final approval before sending copy to the printer.

Wigwam Staff Captures

As the text books closed for the last time on the 1963-64 school year, plans for this year's Wigwam were already well underway. Working through April and May, six veteran staff members, led by editor-in-chief, Claudia Dille made plans for the production of the 1965 Wigwam. When staff positions had been announced at the publications banquet later in the spring, fourteen newly chosen staff members added their suggestions to aid Claudia in planning the book at Indiana University High School Journalism Institute. During the two weeks they spent there last summer, she and associate editor, Mary Schakel, used these ideas as the basis for the dummy, a page by page layout of the entire yearbook.

With the arrival of the completed dummy in the fall, the real work of the staff members began. Using words and pictures they sought to capture the spirit of Warren's World combining the varied interests, activities and duties of over 1600 people to give an over-all picture of the 1964-65 school year at Warren Central. But as they sought to provide students with a visable memory of the year, the staff had still another goal, — to achieving a top rating of the National Scholastic Press Association, which sets the standards for yearbook production. With this in mind, managing editor, Judy Brown, worked doubly hard correcting errors to be sure that the finished book would be letter perfect. Yet with copy to write, pictures to crop, and ever present deadlines to meet, sometimes it seemed to staff members that the book would never be finished.

Seniors, underclassmen and faculty section editors, Barbara Booker, Ann Thompson, Ann Pauley, Kay Brown, Carol Conard, and Kathy Amos work closely with each other to plan picture schedules for their respective sections. These three sections together form the basis of the yearbook, the album.

Year's Memorable Events in Words and Pictures

In spite of all this, the work of the staff was not exactly drudgery. Many other activities besides writing copy and taking pictures were involved in putting together the Wigwam. Over $7,000 was needed to finance this year's book, the biggest yet, and staffmen were kept busy with various money raising projects throughout the year. Sales of the book itself accounted for the biggest part of the needed funds. Staff members enjoyed writing, producing and starring in the annual skit to kick off the subscription drive in the fall. To further meet expenses, the staff sold advertisements to local merchants and auctioned off pictures at the Wigwam-sponsored Spring Shuffle. Senior staffers produced and sold Senior Wills, which gave all Warren seniors a chance to voice a final wish.

Rodney Horton, sports staff member, checks the Wigwam's financial situation with advertising manager, John Fouts, and subscriptions, Sheila Adkins and Debbie Lindner.

Activities editors, Mike Baldwin and Sharon Lesher, consult the dummy with sports editors, Bob Hill and Kirby Cummings.

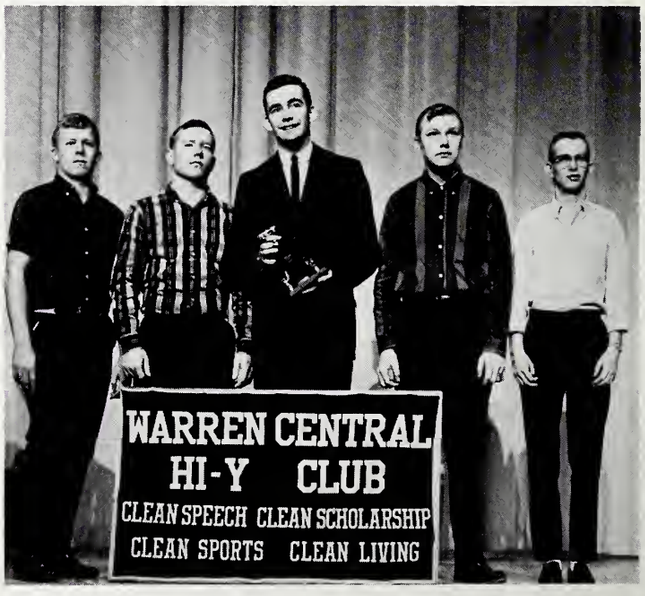
Betty Little and Cynthia Sykes, academics editors, plan pictures for their section with the aid of photographer, Mike Meyer.

Helping Hands, Hearts Theme of Warrenettes, Hi-C,

The Warrenettes Club is actually three clubs in one. Each class is represented by the three divisions; the Senior Warrenettes, the Junior Warrenettes, and the Sophomore Warrenettes. To be of service to the administration and to the student body is the main purpose of the Warrenettes. The Clubs sponsored the Fall Dance, "Fall Fantasy," and the Christmas Dance, "Mistletoe Magic." The Warrenettes also held a fashion show in the fall where the latest styles for autumn wear were shown. They also devoted a great deal of time to the float for the Homecoming football game. The club's most well known activity, the Valentine's Tea, was cancelled because of the fire.

Another service club is the Junior Red Cross. The Junior Red Cross members collected clothes for the children of Muskatatuck State Hospital at Christmastime. Craig Hawks and Ed Clemmer dressed up like Santa Claus for the occasion and visited each homeroom to remind students to bring their contributions.

Displaying the March of Dimes trophy are Alpha Hi-Y officers, Steve McKneely, Steve Smidley, president; Dave Simpson, Jim Ostemier, Larry Baldwin, and Ron Kottlowski.



Decorations are being made by senior Warrenette officers Carolyn Loeper, Carol Jung, Sandy Hensley, president, Judy Brown, and Claudia Dille in preparation for the Christmas Dance.

Junior Warrenette officers Linda Hayes, president, Rita Stephenson, Karon Gilchrist, and Gloria Althardt prepare for the spring fashion show, sponsored by local stores.

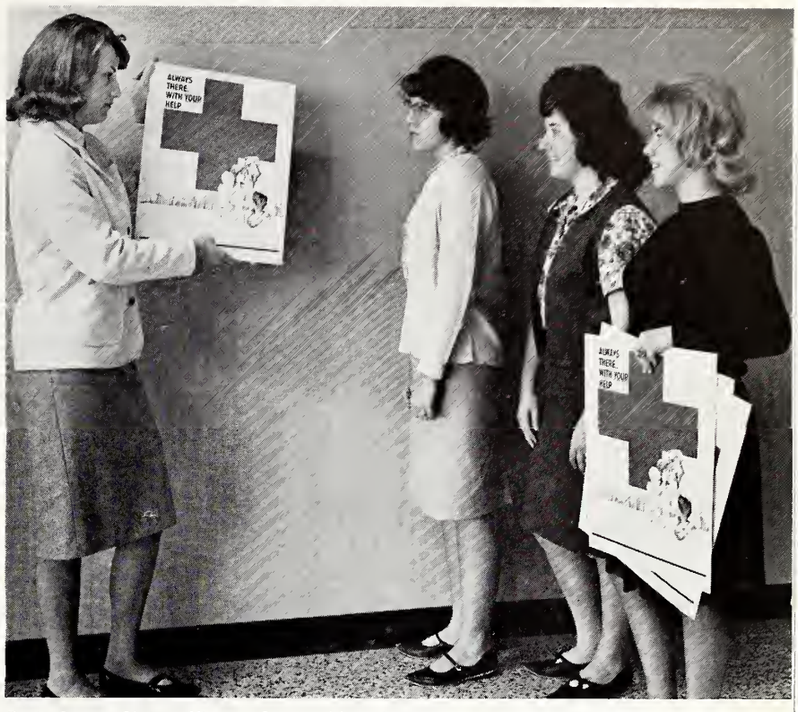
Planning for the fall homecoming float Sophomore Warrenette officers Jan Munn, JoEllen Nevins, Margie Miller, Cathy Orlopp, and Janet Rumph, president.

Hi-Y, and Red Cross Club

Three needy families had well-stocked shelves this year, thanks to the Warren Hi-C Club. The club's Feed-a-Family project was a great success with practically the whole school contributing. Each homeroom was asked to bring certain articles such as bread or vegetables. Approximately twelve cardboard boxes were filled with food.

The club itself is the largest club at Warren, with about four hundred and fifty members from all three classes. At the monthly meetings films or speakers usually presented some interesting topic on Christian living. Among this year's most important speakers were Dr. Burleigh Matthew and his wife, who went to India on their own to help the people.

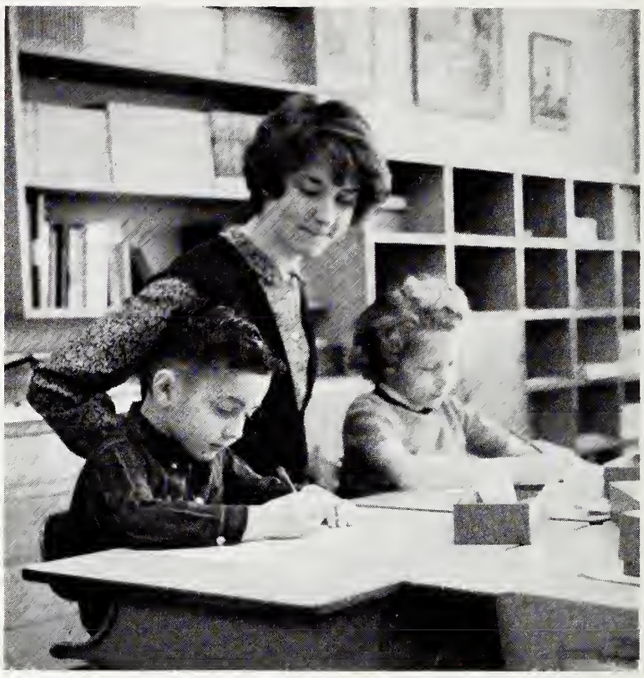
The Alpha Hi-Y Club is a service club at Warren. For the second year in a row, the club collected money for the March of Dimes. The Alpha Hi-Y is made up of forty boys and often has its meetings at the Eastside Y.M.C.A. All members are juniors and seniors.



Red Cross Club officers Candy Nichols, Kathy Poole, president, Janet Dake, and Darlene Koch put up posters displaying the month of March as "Red Cross Month."

Hi-C president Mike Baldwin makes announcements as officers Susie Noffke, Lynn Sprowl, Craig Hawks, Bob Heisel and Jeff Jernigan assemble for a monthly meeting.

Future Teachers president, Don Wilson, demonstrates techniques in classroom procedure which may someday prove valuable to fellow officers, Mary Schakel, Debbie Friedlund, Kendra Peabody, Susan Ulm, Richard Wolf and Rosemarie Kuntz.



By working closely with two of her pupils, Peggy Milliser learns how important individual attention is to children. The exploratory teaching program enables students to gain first-hand knowledge of the teaching profession.

'Future' Clubs Aid Interested Students in Choosing

Business Club member, Cindy Ryon, seems disgusted with her typing errors, while kibitzing fellow officers, John Fox, Betsy McClain, president; Glenda Sego, and Paula Holcomb look on in amusement.

The fact that Future Teachers of America, with over 120 members, was one of the largest clubs at Warren this year seemed to indicate a growing interest in the field of education. Realizing the need for qualified teachers, these students joined FTA to learn more about the teaching profession. Guest speakers, participation in the state FTA convention, and discussions on all phases of education helped members in deciding whether or not they wished to choose a teaching career.

Several senior club members carried their interest even further by enrolling in the exploratory teaching program. By working for a semester with a different elementary or junior high class each six weeks, they gained actual teaching practice and met weekly in a regular class period to discuss various aspects of teaching. Cadet teachers also shared their sometimes amusing experiences with other members of FTA to encourage further participation in the program.

The Warren Business Club is an organization to promote competent, aggressive business leadership and to create more understanding and interest in choosing business occupations. The Business Club operated a coat check at every basketball game, the proceeds of which went towards a $100 scholarship for a senior.

The main goal of the Future Homemakers Club is to teach its members the various skills necessary for successfully managing their future homes. To aid their fellow club members in preparing to become efficient homemakers, this year's officers arranged visits from several guest speakers and planned demonstrations on many aspects of homemaking. A style show from Cecil's, a visit from Mrs. Dee Florey of Patricia Stevens, a film on teenage marriage and a flower-arranging demonstration were some of the highlights of the year's programs.

Girls interested in nursing and related health fields were able to learn more about their chosen careers by joining the Nurses Club. Besides fostering an interest in the nursing profession, this club gave members a chance to understand the nursing tradition of helping others through its service project for patients at Community Hospital. Also included in this year's activities were films on medical careers and a field trip to Fort Benjamin Harrison where club members learned of the opportunities available in Army nursing.

Nurses Club president, Tonya Bowman, plays "patient", as officers Rosella Shrader, Lucy Prikaszczikow, Brenda Ragle and Diana Britt practice their nursing skills.

Worthwhile Vocations

Future Homemakers officers, Anita Edwards, president; Connie Spivey, Pam Boling, Vicki McKinley (seated), and Carol Conrad, Nancy Berry and Sheila Adkins (standing), take time out to thumb through pattern books in the home economics model living room. These girls are responsible for inviting guest speakers and planning demonstrations of interest to their fellow club members.

Avalanche of Words, Study of Future and Past,

The speech team, under the direction of Mr. Harold Wilfong, participated in twelve speech meets during the season. This year they placed second in sectional competition among ten schools.

There are two varsity debate teams and numerous sub-varsity units. Each team consists of two members. The debate team's new coach, Mr. Philip Douglas, has had much success with both varsity and sub-varsity teams. In the NFL State Debate, Warren was the only school to have both teams in the top five, with the varsity placing second and fifth. This season Mr. Douglas concentrated on building up the sub-varsity divisions, training them for next year's competition as varsity debaters.

The Dramatics Club, sponsored by Mr. William Ney, had one of the largest memberships because of its interest variety. Members attended a demonstration on the use of stage make-up and heard speakers from the Booth Tarkington Civic Theatre give briefings on acting methods. The club is responsible for planning the productions given throughout the year. "Arms and the Man" was given in the fall, and in the spring they jointly produced "The Sound of Music" with the music department.

Mike Stow acts as a critic for Scarlett Lintner as she practices a cutting for a future speech meet.

This year's varsity debaters were Sue Redmond, Richard Morford, Debbie Harshey, Richard Bothel, Steve Wolfgang, Dirk Reek, Bob Lombard, Bob Philips, and Dave Simpson.

The 1964-65 Dramatics Club officers were (seated) Susan Davis, Sherry Showalter, Kay Reno, president; (standing) Barb White, Cynthia Sykes, and Sharon Day.

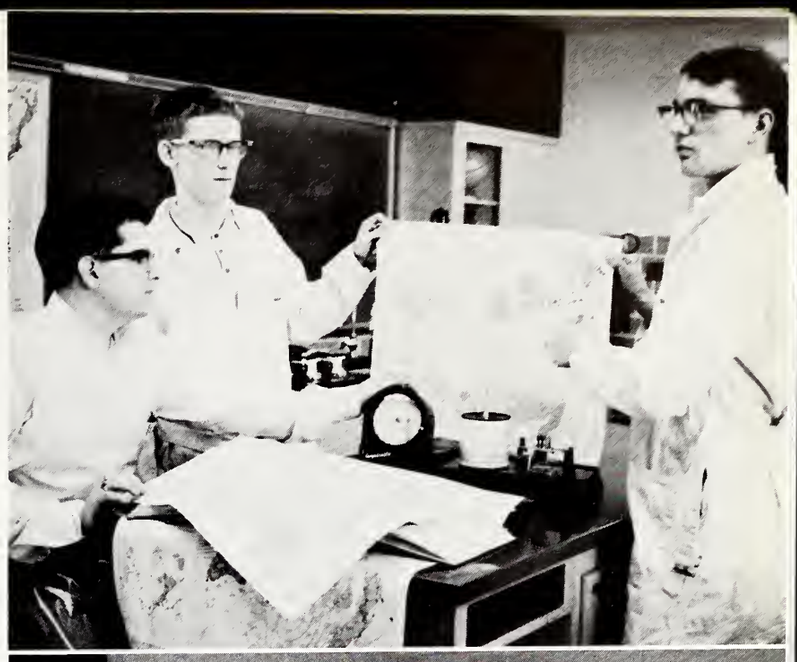
Mark Clubs at Warren

Snow and Cold. This is just one of the Warren Central Science Club's predictions. The club set up an amateur weather station and made fairly accurate predictions. This year the science club's activities were greatly varied although hampered by fire. The club took field trips to Buckner and Salamander Caves and the seniors took their annual trip to Eli Lilly's Greenfield Laboratories. At its monthly meetings, the Science Club had movies and lectures concerning various fields of science.

The Warren Math Club is a member of the national math honor society, Mu Alpha Theta. A student may be a member of the club, however, without being a member of Mu Alpha Theta. The Math Club prepared interesting displays or puzzles each week to put in their display case. For example, one of the displays was on the theory of Pascal's triangle. At Math Club meetings, such interesting topics as computers and binary system of numbers were presented by Warren teachers. The Math Club took a field trip to the Argonne Laboratories in Chicago. These laboratories are noted for their atomic reactors.

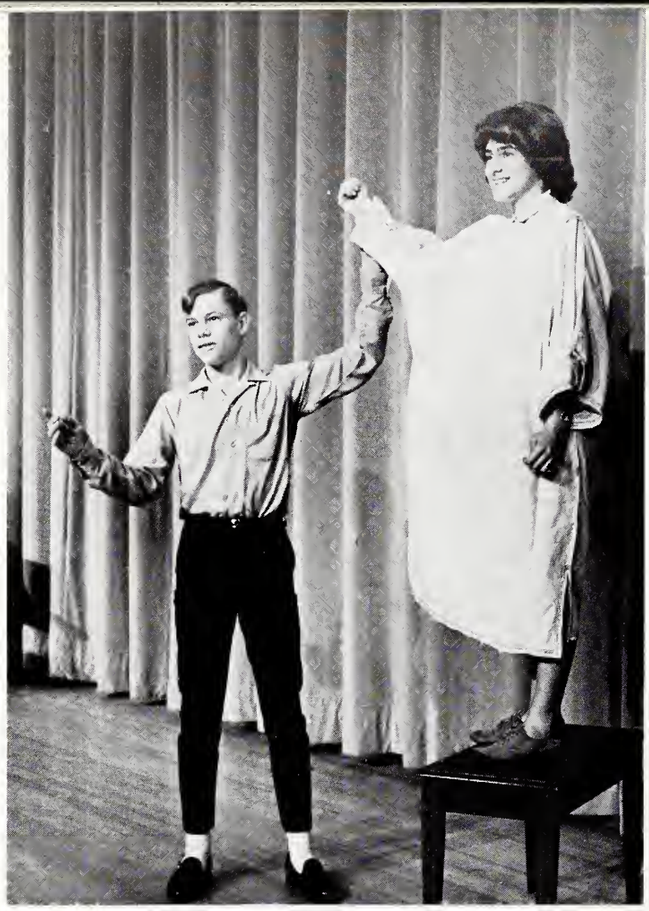
The History Club, a member of Sigma Sigma Chi, a national honorary history society, is an organization to further the knowledge of the past and its people.

History Club officers, John Bates, president; Gary Schultz, Shirley Rump, and Glenda Melvin search through the social studies library while planning a future meeting.



Science Club officers, Don Royston, Jim Osborn, and Gregg Munson, president; discuss the principal localities and causes of earthquakes. Maps are an important tool in this field of study.

Math Club officers, John Younce, Tom Wolfe, president; and Bruce Bicknell look over pamphlets on various fields of study in mathematics while planning a meeting.



Don Bicknell, Latin Club president, auctions off Jan Bryan, secretary-treasurer, at the Latin Club Slave Sale.

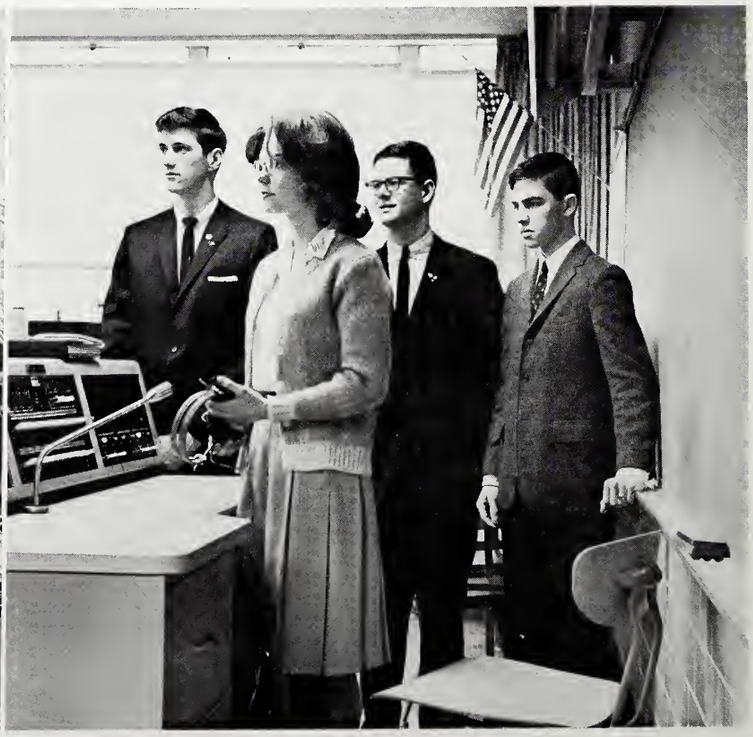
Library and Language

This year the Latin Club was the newest addition to Warren's activities program. Especially interested Latin students organized this club, under the sponsorship of Mr. Leon Thompson, to learn more about life in the days of the Roman Empire. Club members re-lived ancient times by participating in the club's major project, a slave auction. For this event, volunteer student "slaves," dressed in the appropriate Roman attire, were auctioned off to other club members, for whom they performed minor tasks. Latin Club members so enjoyed this activity that they look forward to making it an annual event.

Both future librarians and students who simply wished to become better acquainted with library procedure, furthered their interests by joining the Library Club. These pupils learned how a library is operated by inviting experienced librarians to speak before them, and by taking field trips to some of the outstanding libraries in the area. To gain actual experience, they helped Mrs. Lois Witte by preparing books for use in Warren's library.

Chip Wieland, officer in the Spanish Club, displays a Mexican sombrero to Linda Brammer, president; Linda Faulkenburg, and Nancy Rogers.

German Club officers, Cathy Groome, Karl Kriegsmann, president; Norm Roesener, and Dirk Reek examine a new set of headphones for the language lab.



Clubs Aid in Understanding Other Peoples

This year's Library Club officers (standing) Larry Burton and George Bogdan; (seated) Lucille Stamper, Pam Mumaugh, president; and Sue Moore, glance through some of the magazines from Wa ren's extensive periodical section. Members of this club often help in the library during their free periods.

"Bonjour," "Como esta usted," and "Guten tag" may seem like Greek to the average person, but they are familiar greetings to the members of Warren's three modern language clubs. By joining these clubs, French, Spanish and German students went beyond the classroom to learn even more about the people and customs of the countries whose languages they had mastered.

This year the first order of business for the French Club was to change its name to Le Cercle Francais. In keeping with their goal of learning as much as possible about life in France, club members also heard speakers who had lived in France and sampled the French cuisine at Rene's French Restaurant.

Unlike the other foreign language clubs, the Spanish Club had a variety of countries to study. Among this year's activities were a Mexican dinner and the traditional breaking of a pinata to celebrate Christmas.

German Club members met monthly after school to improve their pronunciation and discuss life in Germany. They also organized a German choir to compete with the other language clubs in the Spring Sing, which provided entertainment for the annual banquet.

French club officers, Lenna Croan, Joy Henard, president; Marie Schaekel, Tim DeBruicker, and Sue Watkins look for familiar dishes on a French Menu. These officers were responsible for planning meetings which their fellow club members enjoyed all year.

Wide Variety of Activity

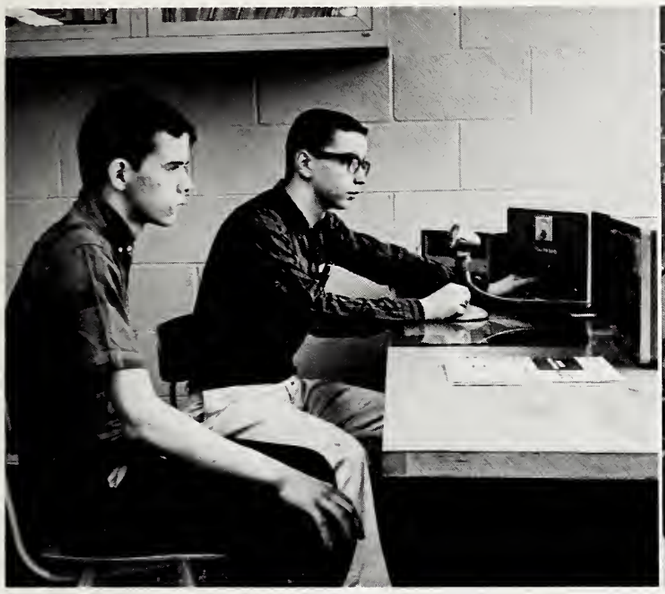
Drivers' Club officers are Janet Slattery, secretary; Bill Carnes, president; and Mike Hanna, vice president. The Drivers' Club, sponsored by Mr. Don Wasson, sponsored the Safety Check.

The Drivers' Club seeks to impress upon its members the importance of safe and skillful driving. With this in mind, club members, each of whom is a licensed driver, meet monthly to discuss automobile safety and rules of the road. Realizing the need for better teenage driving habits, they also schedule visits from local police officers and films on safe driving. In cooperation with the driver education classes, the club promotes safe driving at Warren by conducting safety checks on the cars of all students who apply for school parking permits.

The 4-H Junior Leaders Club is made up of Warrenites who are advanced members of the national 4-H program. These students have consistently shown their leadership qualities by coming out on top in various 4-H contests, such as those held at the County and State Fairs. They met throughout the year to exchange project ideas, advise other clubs on the qualities necessary for successful competition, and plan their next entries in future 4-H events.

Jr. Leader officers Larry Bade, Don Abbott, president; Susan Fall, Dave Stricker and John Fox check the notes of Kathy Steuerwald.

Proves Both Interesting and Educational



President Steve Benell answers a call for WA9BWI on the Radio Club's Ham set as Dave O'Haver, vice president, looks on. This club has been growing in popularity.

Checking catalogues for the latest diving equipment are the Scuba Club officers Dennis Wilhelm, president; John Cochrun, vice president; Chan Varner, treasurer; and Bill Murphy, secretary.

Warren's "ham" radio enthusiasts are able to develop their interests in this rapidly growing hobby by joining the Radio Club. The fifteen boys who made up the club this year met during homeroom to practice Morse code and to learn the techniques which would enable them to gain an amateur radio licenses. They also learned how to build transmitters and receivers for Warren's "ham" radio station — WA9BWI, which they operated on Wednesday nights.

The SCUBA Club is probably the most widely travelled organization at Warren. Because of their landlocked location, these skin-diving students went all over the state to find lakes suitable for engaging in dive contests and other activities. To finance these events, the club sold school calendars in September. At their "home" meetings they caught up with latest equipment by reading SCUBA catalogues.

Although they do not comprise an organization as such, Warren's student assistants are one of the school's most important groups. They give up study time to aid busy teachers and administrators by performing the countless chores which would be impossible for faculty members to find time to complete. Office, audio-visual, nurses' and teachers' assistants are among those pupils who help keep the school running smoothly.

Teacher's assistant, Mike Kelly, delivers a ditto to office assistant, Diane Mellon, as Helena Prikaszczikow gets ready to take attendance sheets around to the classrooms.

Lettermen's Club officers Harry Preston, Dennis Wilhelm, John Woodburn, Larry Wetherald, president; Jon Cazee, and Kirby Cummings, and Pep Block officers, Dayna Rodewald, Pam Sink, president; and Donna Schmid view the many awards that Warren athletes have won over the years.

Adorning numerous cars around Warren Township are bright black and gold license plates. The selling of these plates was the main project of the Warren Central Lettermen's Club. The Lettermen's Club is a group consisting of all Warren athletes who have received a varsity award. Having a big "WC" means a great deal to most boys, and they will willingly sacrifice their time, talents, and energies to gain this recognition. Upon gaining his first award, a boy receives the traditional gold sweater and one chevron. When a senior letters for the second year in the same sport, he receives a white sweater.

The Lettermen sponsor the Fall, Winter, and Spring Sports Queen Contests each year and also award a scholarship to a deserving Warren athlete. This year, the Lettermen also sold black and gold ball point pens with the basketball schedule printed on the side.

Along with the Lettermen's Club, the Pep Block helped increase the Warren spirit. Any girl is eligible to belong to Pep Block if she meets the one main requirement of attending all home games. The spirit of the Pep Block was an important factor in the winning of many games.

The Industrial Arts Club is a group made up of students interested in the industrial arts, such as mechanics, shop, drafting, and mechanical drawing.

Warren's fierce determination is shown by the countenance of the Warrior, Rick Guyer. The presence of the Warrior at each basketball game was a symbol of the Warren spirit.

The Warren Pep Block were loyal backers of the basketball team throughout the season. Their cheers spurred the team on to many victories.

Student Musicians Show Talent at Concerts, Convos,

Pep band members take time out between numbers to watch some on-the-court action at Winter Homecoming. Their musical backing aided the cheerleaders and Warriorettes in drumming up spirit.

Everything from "Bach to Bop" could well be the slogan of the 1965 Warren Central Orchestra. Under the direction of Mr. Bruce Fowler, the orchestra has played all types and forms of music. In their spring concert they performed such musical compositions as Coriolan Overture (classical period), the Air and Gavotte from the Bach Suite No. 3, Hoe-Down from Aaron Copland's Rodeo, the Stars and Stripes Forever by Sousa, and parts of Tschaikowsky's 5th Symphony.

The orchestra's two annual concerts are traditionally called "An Evening in Hi-Fi." This year's musical, "The Sound of Music," got a big helping hand from the students concealed in the orchestra pit. Ten instrumentalists entered the district and state solo and ensemble contests, winning many first place ribbons.

As a former member of the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra, Mr. Fowler has brought present symphony members to work with Warren orchestra students or to perform as soloists. Igor Buketoff, nationally known conductor, praised the work of the musicians at an orchestral clinic at the Indiana State Teachers Association convention.

This year the Warren orchestra was singled out for another honor. The orchestra was chosen to tape two hours of music for the program "Voice of America" which will be broadcast throughout the free world and even behind the Iron Curtain.

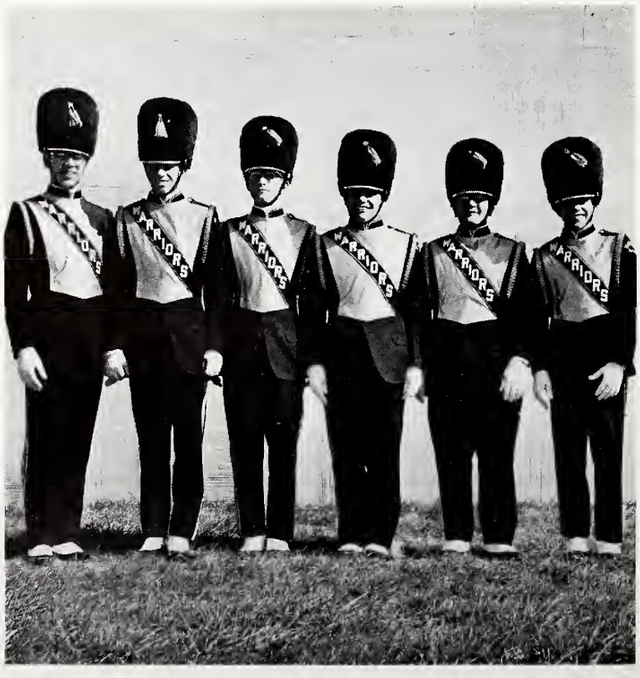
BAND OFFICERS—Steve Whiteside, 1st lieutenant; Dan Thompson, captain; Jim Osburn, quartermaster; Bruce Bicknell, quartermaster; Don Royston, quartermaster; and Don Bicknell, 2nd lieutenant.



New uniforms and good music were the watchwords for the 1964-65 Marching Warriors. The story of this year's band goes back to last August when the band started practice. They practiced three hours a day for three weeks before school began. When school opened, the band began its one-hour-a-day practice sessions.

The Warriors marched in the 500 Festival Parade and also before the 500 Mile Race. They participated in the Veteran's Day Parade and in the Indiana University Band Day. In addition, they competed in a band contest at Southport and received a first place. They also performed for the Indiana Bandmaster's Association at Ball State Teacher's College. At home, the Marching Warriors performed at half-time for the football games and presented three band concerts during the year.

No less a part of the band are the drum majors and majorettes. These individuals are actual members and play instruments. A great deal of work goes into the training of the drum majors and majorettes. The two drum majors attended the Smith-Waldridge Drum Major Camp during the summer while the majorettes attended Butler Majorette Camp.

Warriorettes Add Color

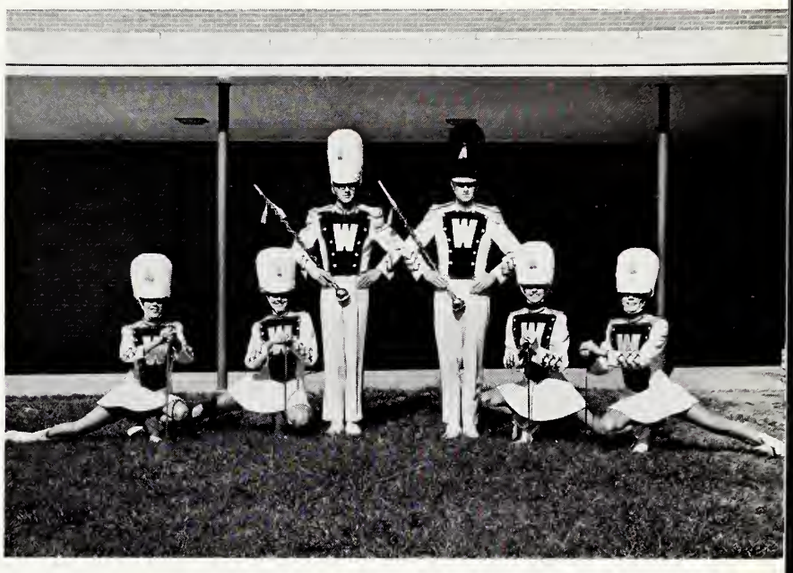
DRUM MAJORS AND MAJORETTES—Cheryl Blaisdell, Andrea Snyder, Richard Platt, Rich Hansen, Cheryl Lady, and Lynn Sprowl. This group added much color to our home games.



WARRIORETTES—Joy Frazier, Janet Johnson, Judy Bowman, Jane Kile, Nancy Willman, Carol Watkins, and Cindy Worton.

of Music to Warrenites

Baa-Bee-Ba-Bo-BOO! No, it isn't a secret code. It's just the way the Warren Central vocal groups warm up their sparkling voices. There are four vocal groups at Warren: the Madrigals, the Trebletones, the Warrenaires, and the Choir.

The Madrigals, one of the top singing groups, is a select mixed ensemble of sixteen members. This year the Madrigals sponsored an old English banquet at the Sheffield Inn. The Madrigals were dressed in old English costumes of the medieval period. In addition to this dinner, they also made many appearances for churches, P.T.A.'s, and other special groups.

The Trebletones is another select group of sixteen girls. The Trebletones generally sing the more popular type of music and are favorites for personal appearances. They have performed for sororities, social clubs, and churches. They have also made two appearances at the Essex House.

The Warrenaires is a vocal group of approximately sixty members. They usually make their appearances at school for convocations; however, they did appear at Glendale where they sang Christmas carols. They also participated in the presentation of the Messiah.

The Choir is primarily a learning group. It is here that the beginning vocal students learn the fundamentals of music.

World Of SPORTS

Like a wild ride on a roller coaster, the world of sports has its ups, downs, and in-betweens. The sound of the buzzer signaling victory; the fight against tears at a black-and-gold defeat; the muscles aching from hours of practice; the time-out to hunt for a contact lens; the faithful football fans, freezing at a game — all in all, there's never been a roller coaster quite like it!

Undefeated Warriors Lay Hold to County Title

On August 15, high school boys from all over the Marion County area began practice, hoping that they would go through the season with an unbeaten record. At the end of the season only one of the twenty-six high schools in Marion County, Warren Central, finished with an unblemished record.

The first game of the season, which was against Martinsville, began with the Warriors looking like just another ordinary team, but when the second half started everyone realized that this team had what it takes to be great. At the end of the half the score was 0-0. At the end of the game the score was 20-0 in favor of Warren Central. This showed that the boys had the ability to do what they wanted.

The Warriors showed their defensive talents by also holding Lawrence and Arlington scoreless, and allowing Tech only two points. Leading the defense with 88 tackles was Ron Breedon, followed by Tom Limbach, with 63. Ed Clemmer, Harry Preston, Herb Jewell, Craig Hawks, Bill Dusang, Jim Wallace, and John Cochrun rounded out the defensive squad, which allowed only 47 points all year.

Stan Taylor, first in scoring, tallied twelve touchdowns and seven extra points. John Woodburn Football coaches Walt Wintin, Jerry Stauffer, Dave Shaw, head coach, and Leo Hines display the 1964 County Trophy won by the team. The Warriors were 7-0-2 for the season.

Stan Taylor, senior, lowers his head and drives for a few extra yards against Arlington High School. Hard-charging Taylor led the tribe in total yards gained and earned himself an All County selection by accumulating a record of 748.

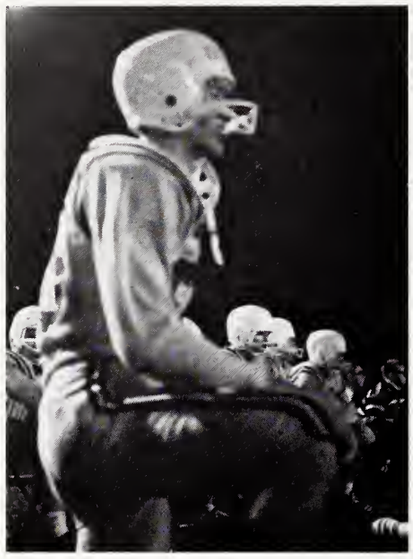
With Exciting Season

Senior, Ed Clemmer, in his second year of varsity punting for the Warriors, displays the form that averaged 36.5 yards per kick. Ed's defensive game was even more sensational and brought him the title of All County Tackle.

Triumphant Warrenites



An exhausted Woody kneels on the sidelines.

was second with 36 points, while Kirby Cummings and Larry Wetherald tied for third place with two touchdowns each. Bill Burgess and Tom Limbach added 12 points to the scoreboard. The Warriors rolled up 1354 yards rushing to their challengers 653 yards.

Also leading the team in the running department was Stan Taylor with 748 yards and a 4.0 yards per carry average. Stan actually gained more yards by himself than the Warrior opponents together. Kirby Cummings turned in an excellent 3.7 yards per carry average while Bill Burgess was close at his heels with a 3.6 yards per carry average. The efforts of these two boys helped the Warrior running attack tremendously, as did those of Larry Wetherald and Jon Cazee.

The team's passing game was sparked by the talented arm of quarterback Larry Wetherald who completed 53 passes of 93 attempts. John Woodburn, his favorite target, caught 26 of these passes. Wetherald, who received pass protection from linemen Tom Limbach, Harry Preston, Ed Clemmer, Steve Fischer, Herb Jewell, and Ron Breedon, also found time to complete passes to halfbacks Stan Taylor, Kirby Cummings, and Jon Cazee.

Sometimes ball-carriers can't keep up with their blockers as in Stan Taylor's case during the Arlington game (top). (Below) All-County quarterback Larry Wetherald awaits the outcome of the flip.

Thrive under Experienced Coaching Staff

The highlight of the '64 season was the stunning victory over county rival Southport. The spirit of the boys and coaches, who worked many hours planning for this game, was high. Awards were given to the best decorated cars in a caravan which was organized to raise school support.

Just before the game at the Southport field, to add to the excitement, the lights went out. After a delay of about an hour, the game began. But for Southport the lights must have not come on, for they seemed to be in the dark all evening as the mighty Warriors rolled over them in a 20-0 shellacking, ending the Warriors' season with seven wins, no losses, and two ties.

On November 13, The Indianapolis Times awarded Warren the Marion County Trophy. Also five senior Warriors were awarded All-County honors—Ed Clemmer, Ron Breedon, Larry Wetherald, John Woodburn, and Stan Taylor. The most valuable back award went to Stan Taylor.

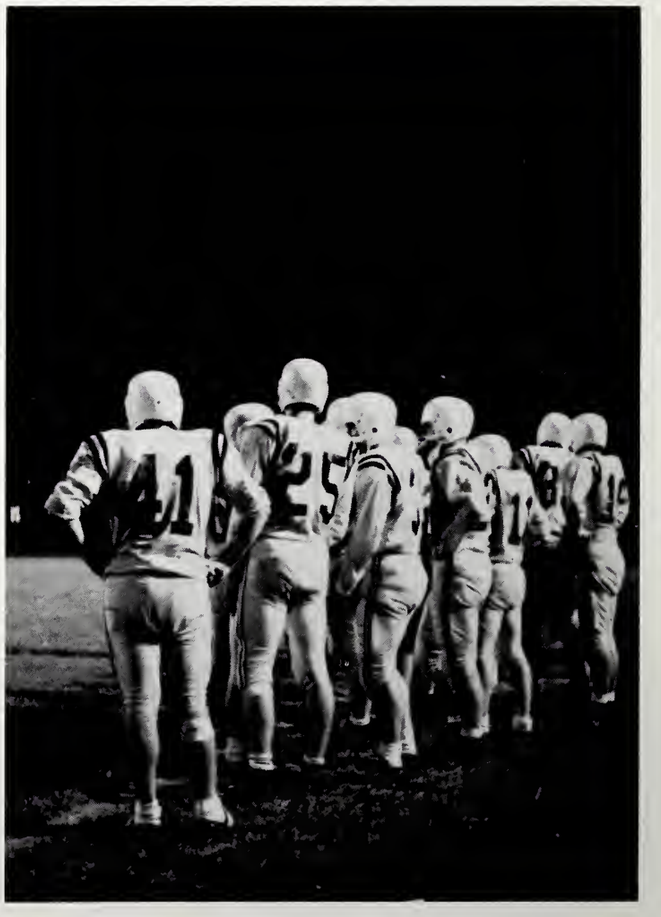
Recapping the season shows a strong crew of seniors, who were also undefeated as freshmen, along with a talented group of juniors, who made up most of the defensive team.

Junior lineman Herb Jewell appears to be throwing a pass, but is actually recovering a fumbled ball during an exciting game in which Warren Central was victorious in a 34-0 defeat of Arlington High School.

Ace quarterback Larry Wetherald prepares to throw to senior Jon Cazee, in the extreme right hand corner.

Bill Burgess, senior fullback, bulls his way through Arlington's line for a four yard gain. High spirits, such as Bill displayed, were a great help to the team.

Defensive halfback, Bruce Ruster, dives to recover a loose ball. The fierce Warren defense held opponents to a minimum of yardage throughout the season.



Warrior center Harry Preston and senior ends John Woodburn and Harry Monroe discuss the action as they watch the defensive squad work. The trio saw much action during the season.

Reserve Gridders Complete Season with 5-3 Record

Five of Warren's County Champs were selected for All-County positions. They were Ron Breeden, guard; Ed Clemmer, tackle; John Woodburn, end; Stan Taylor, back; and Larry Wetherald, quarterback.

Cross Country Team Finishes High in County

CROSS COUNTRY TEAM—(kneeling) Jim Bacon, Bill Morgan, Phil Ross, Ed Norcutt, Jerry Arvin, Arnold McIntosh, Rick Bloom; (standing) Virgil Kirkpatrick, coach, Steve Klein, Harold Adkins, Don Bonsett, Bill Carnes, Bob Breeden, Richard Horton, Louie Schakel, Ed Knoop, Jeff Thatcher, and Bill Orth.

Varsity Harriers Bloom, Bacon, Ross, McIntosh, Arvin and Morgan line up for a practice start, while Coach Kirkpatrick looks on. The varsity squad ran over two-hundred miles in such practice races.

Coach Virgil Kirkpatrick finished his fifth season as coach of the Warren harriers with a winning season, a second in the County, a third in the Sectional and an eleventh in the Regional. Coach Kirkpatrick watched his team compile a seven won, two lost regular season dual meet record and impressive finishes in several large invitational meets.

Leading the Varsity squad to many victories was record-setting Bill Morgan. Bill set the pace around the two mile course in nine minutes fifty-seven seconds, smashing the old record of ten minutes twelve seconds set by Jerry Arvin in 1963.

The Warriors never finished lower than fourth in the several multi-school invitational meets in which they participated. In the eleven school Howe Invitational, Warren took third place behind Southport and Arlington. The Warren harriers placed fourth out of twenty-two schools in the big Shortridge Invitational and third behind Washington and Southport in the eleven school Washington Invitational. Bill Morgan and Jerry Arvin led the tribe to an impressive second in the County Meet by taking fourth and fifth places respectively in the two mile run.

Prospects for the 1965 team look equally as bright with lettermen Bill Morgan and Jim Bacon returning along with veteran harriers Steve Klein, Harold Adkins, Bob Breeden, Paul Streets and Gary Sissom.

Cheerleaders Greatly Increase School Spirit

To be successful, every team needs spirit. Teams draw a great deal of their spirit from the fans in the stands. In order to see that the team knows that the fans are behind them, the fans are led in organized yells by the cheerleaders.

This year's varsity cheerleading squad members were seniors Nancy Steele, Pat Strane and Pris Strane and juniors Nena Andorn, Joy Henard and Mary Lou Nichols. The reserve cheerleaders were junior Karen Walker and sophomores Janie Jones, Margie Miller and Janet Rumph.

Last summer they attended the Smith-Walbridge Camp and once again they walked off with most of the camp's honors with two firsts, one second and one third in the daily competition and first place in the overall competition.

The cheerleaders work hard during the sports season, practicing three or four times every week. They have one scheduled practice each week with their sponsor, Mrs. Betty Devol, and then hold two or three practices on their own initiative.

Members of the 1964-65 Reserve Cheerleading squad were Janie Jones, Karen Walker, Janet Rumph and (below) Margie Miller.

The members of this year's Varsity Cheerleading squad were Pris Strane, Joy Henard, Nena Andorn, Mary Lou Nichols, Pat Strane and (below) Nancy Steele. The girls were chosen by the student body during the spring of last year in an election.

Taylor, Woodburn Lead Varsity in '65 Season

The 1964-65 Warren Central varsity basketball team finished its season with a record of eleven wins and nine losses. The Warriors never fell below the .500 percent mark in wins and losses throughout the entire season.

The squad opened the season with a satisfying 79-52 victory over Martinsville. Stan "Scoop" Taylor led the Warriors attack with 32 points. This was a fine tune-up for the second of the year which was against Tech. The Titans proved to be more competition than Martinsville had been, but the Warriors were still better by a 80-74 margin. John Woodburn's 28 points and Taylor's 27 paced the team. Tech's Dave Harvey tied Woodburn for high point honors.

The Warriors then followed with victories against Scecina, Lawrence Central, and Decatur Central, and were rolling along with an unblemished five wins and no losses record. In the sixth game of the still young season, the squad found the Washington Continentals too tough to beat.

The Continentals, who were ranked second in the state at the time, handled the Warriors easily 71-53. Following this defeat, the tribe bounced right back with a 63-60 victory over County and Sectional champ Ben Davis. Scoop Taylor was once again the game's high scorer with 20 points.

Following a long 21-day layoff for the holidays, the Warriors dropped their second game of the season to North Central's Panthers. The next night the team came to life again and bombed Pike High School 100 to 65. Jim Fuson's lay-up with one second to play helped the Warriors match the century mark and gave him 24 points for the evening. John Woodburn's 34 points led all scorers. Stan Taylor added an additional 22.

On January 14, the Warriors opened the County tourney against Lawrence, and for the second time, knocked off the Bears. However on the following evening, North Central proved once more to be too much for the squad. The final score was North Central 60, Warren 55.

Ray Murphy maneuvers his way under the basket and tallies another two points for the Warriors. Ray, a junior, was an inspiration to the Warriors as a sixth man.

Trying to recover from the county tourney loss, the team hit the regular season schedule once more, and defeated southside rival Southport 56-52. The varsity then lost to Beech Grove 79-75, but followed with a 64 to 56 win over visiting Carmel.

The Warriors then fell into a slump and lost four ballgames in a row, the first to state-ranked Manual, the second to Columbus who had won sixteen games in seventeen starts. Arlington's Golden Knights then provided Warren Central with its seventh loss of the year, 87-75. The boys then went against Howe, and for the second time in as many years, the game ended in a tie. Howe won the game in the overtime 64-60, despite the fact that the Warriors had four men in double figures, John Woodburn, Scoop Taylor, Jim Fuson, and Bruce Hickman.

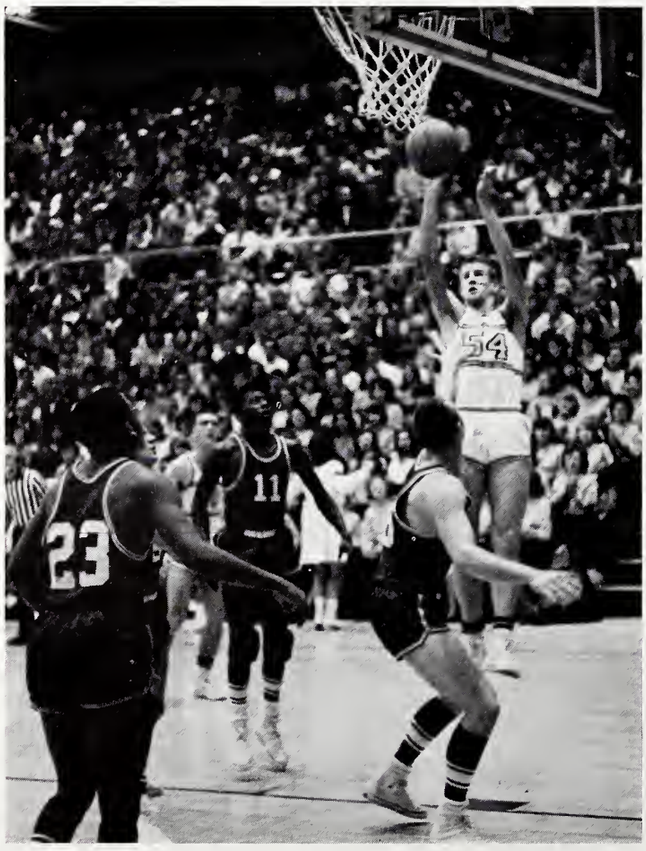
Realizing that they might fall below the .500 percent mark, the squad was forced to hustle and pick up a needed victory from Franklin Central 61 to 59.

This ended the regular season play for Kirkpatrick's boys, but there was still the sectional. Warren lost its first game of the tourney to Cathedral. The Irish not only surprised the Warriors 65-55, but also defeated Tech, the pre-sectional favorite, and North Central to reach the final game which they lost to Ben Davis.

Senior forward John Woodburn led varsity basketball team with 391 points during the season. Versatile Scoop Taylor was second with 351, and guard Jim Fuson was third with a total of 211. Woodburn was also the team leader in field goal shooting percentage. He hit 174 shots of 383 attempts for a .454 percent. Sophomore Bruce Hickman hit a .412 percent with 21 baskets in 51 tries. Taylor went to the foul line more than any other Warrior (136) and made 96 for a respectable .706 percent, but Jim Fuson had the best average (.767) by hitting 59 free throws in 77 attempts.

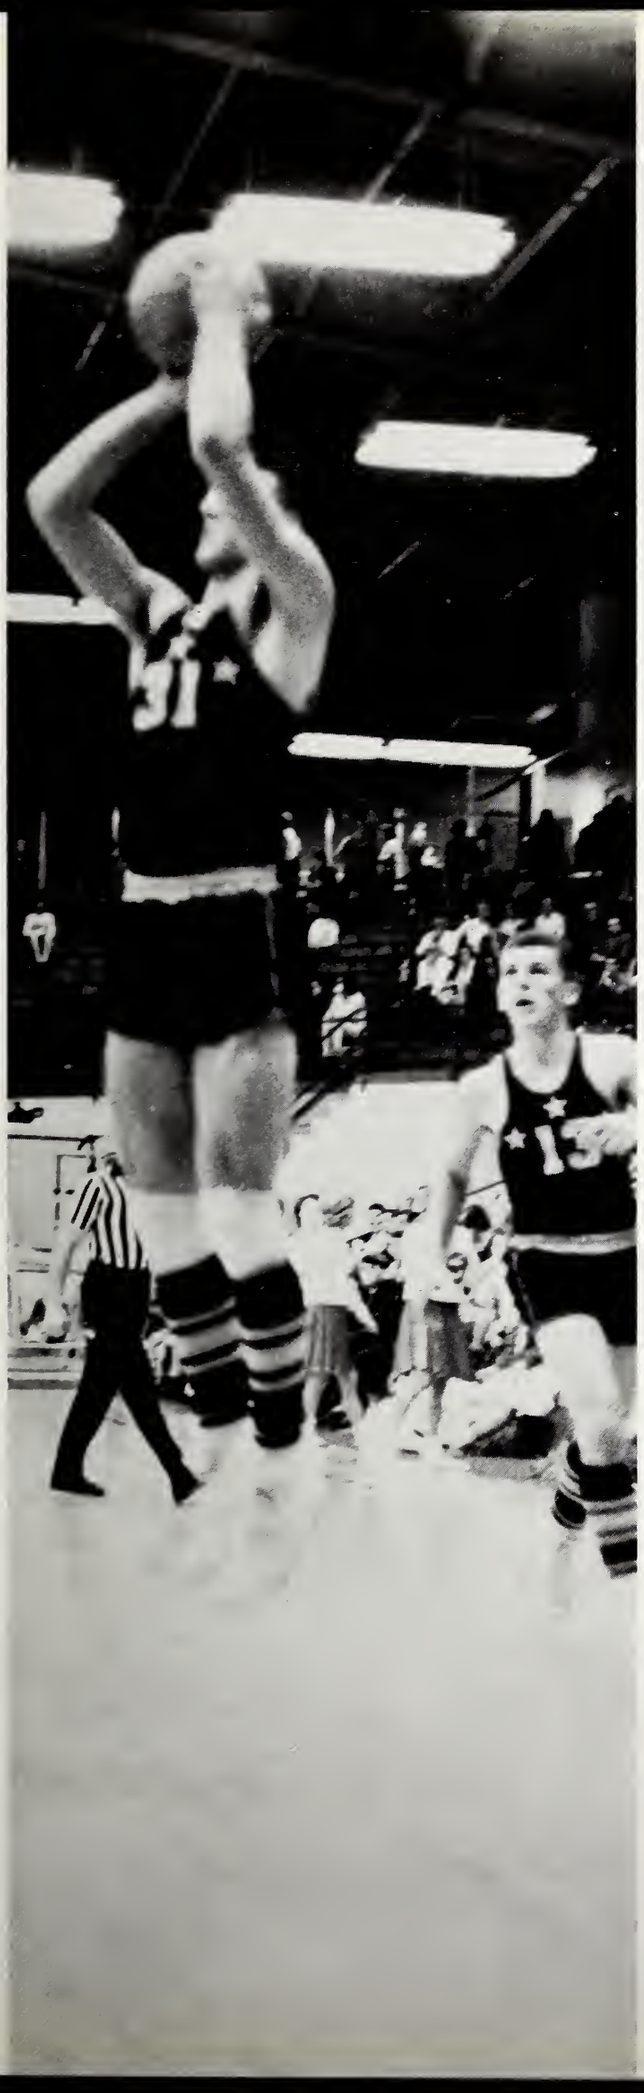
In the rebounding department, Woodburn was once more on top with 206. Taylor was again second with 108, and Senior center Ed Clemmer was third with 92.

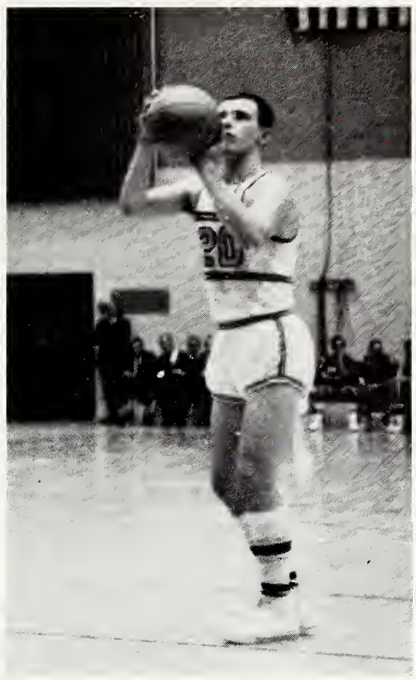
In the team records, the Warriors were in front of their opponents in most categories. For instance, in field goal shooting the Warriors hit twenty-one more and had a .380 percentage to their opponents .373. In free throw shooting, the varsity squad was among the Marion county leaders all year. They finished with a .672 percentage from the foul line. The team outscored their opponents 1412 to 1283.



Sophomore Bruce Hickman makes a fade-away jump shot during the Homecoming game against Manual. Bruce at 6' 4" proved to be a valuable rebounder and an aggressive player.

The Warriors' Jim Fuson (15) reaches after a high-flying loose ball against Harry Williams (24) of Southport on the Cardinals' home floor.





Stan Taylor, senior, sinks another free throw. Stan led the team during the regular season in free throws, completing 90 of 128 shots for a .703 percentage.

Coach Virgil Kirkpatrick counsels his team as the boys catch their breath during a time out. Coach Kirkpatrick finished his fifth season as head coach with a record of 11 wins and 7 losses.

Returning to the Warriors' court again this year was All-Sectional John Woodburn. Here John exhibits his shooting accuracy with a jump shot from the corner.

The Warren Central reserve basketball season record for this year was nine wins and ten losses. The season started out looking good for the team as they won over Martinsville 41-38. A couple of the highlights of the season were the Beech Grove and Ben Davis games. Beech Grove had a record of 11-4 when the reserves rolled over them in a 55-27 victory. Ben Davis who also had a good record was defeated 52-36.

The team this year was paced by Bill Henderson and Paul Streets, who were the two top scorers. Henderson tallied 164 points, while Streets accounted for 156. Of the boys who shot over 20 free throws during the entire season, Nick Lady hit 28 out of 38 for a 73.6 percent average, and was the best on the team. Second in this line was Paul Streets, who hit 38 out of 56 for a 67.8 percent average.

Leading the rebound department was Nick Lady, with a total of 81 defensive and offensive rebounds. Close at his heels was Bob Sponcil with a total of 77.

Four of the boys on the reserve team this year dressed for varsity games. They were Bill Henderson, Paul Streets, Bob Sponcil, and Bruce Hickman. During the latter part of the season Bruce played only varsity.

Warren's new reserve basketball coach this year, Mr. Don Wasson, came here from the University of New Mexico, where he played four years of basketball. During three of these years he received a varsity letter.

Bill Henderson and Paul Streets paced the reserve team in total points this year, both within a few points of each other. Shown here is Paul Streets.

Jolly Green Giants Capture Senior Intramural Title

Steve Cooper of Virgil's Mistakes and Ron Ellio of the Royals are in a jump-ball situation.

Mike Warren shoots a jump shot during the Junior League playoffs or the intramural Basketball Tournament.

Though a big snow and the school fire caused the intramural schedule to be changed twice, the program was completed, as usual, with playoffs February 15.

The Jolly Green Giants won the Senior League title with a 34-27 victory over the Rivetz. The Giants were led in scoring by Harry Preston and Kirby Cummings, and in rebounding by Steve Fischer, Butch Monroe, and Dan Peck. Jon Cazee, Steve McNeely, and Jerry Arvin were the defensive backbone for the well-balanced Giants. The Green Giants were the only team in this year's intramural program to finish the season with an unbeaten record. The same boys also achieved an undefeated record during their junior season, thus allowing them to finish with a remarkable 21-win and no-loss record over a two-year period.

In the Junior League playoffs, Virgil's Mistakes, led by Dave Nelson, Rodney Horton, and Steve Cooper defeated the Rolling Rocks by a score of 43-34 in the championship game.

In the sophomore circuit the Crusaders, with Dave Young and Louie Schakel were easy victors over the Flea Flickers by a 65-21 margin.

Members of the Senior League champions are (front) Steve McNeely, Kirby Cummings, Jon Cazee; (back) Dan Peck, Jerry Arvin, Steve Fischer, Butch Monroe, and Harry Preston.

Win Individual Honors

The 1964-65 Warren wrestling team came through a rugged schedule this year with a four-win, seven-loss record, an improvement of two wins over last year's record. Most of the losses were close, and a few breaks could have considerably raised the team's record. The Warrior's troubles appeared to stem from a dearth of upperclassmen on the varsity lineup.

While the team's record was not spectacular, a few of the individual records were. Senior Dan Stiko posted a sensational 17-win record for the season in the 95-pound weight class with his only two losses coming in the County and Sectional meets. Another individual who consistently contributed highly to the team effort was Dennis Wilhelm. Dennis, a junior, captured the County and Sectional championships in his 112-pound weight class and placed runner-up in the Regionals. Bill Burgess, a senior, copped a County title and team mate Roger Lovell finished runner-up in the County competition.

Dan Stiko, 95-pound senior, moves quickly for a pin against his opponent. Dan compiled a remarkable record of 18 wins in 20 matches, wrestling in every meet.

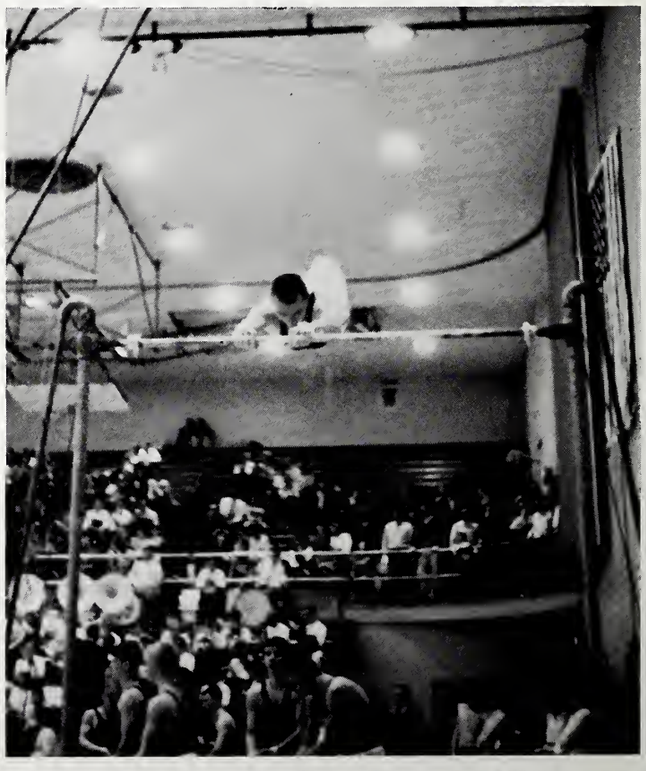
Don Wilson, veteran gymnast, executes a handstand on the still rings. Don consistently placed well in every meet and was a great help to the team.



During a half-time exhibition Denny O'Dell demonstrates high swings on the high bar. Denny, a junior, had a very good season and should do even better as a senior.

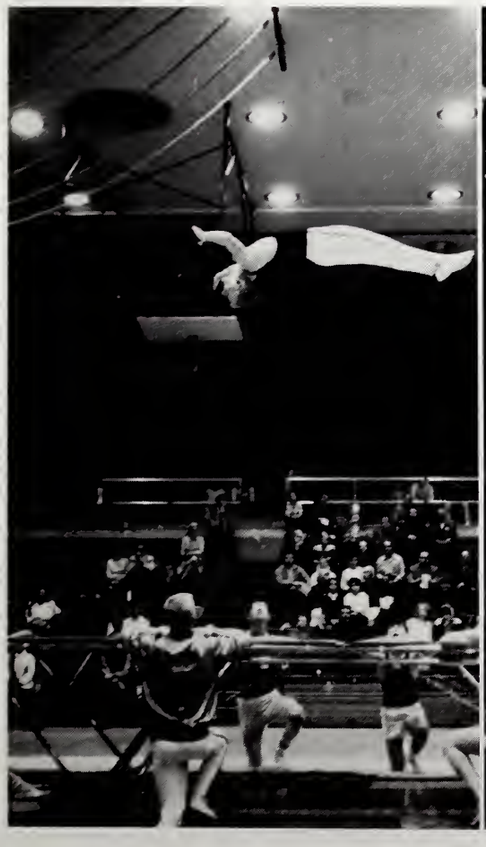
Place 5th in State Meet

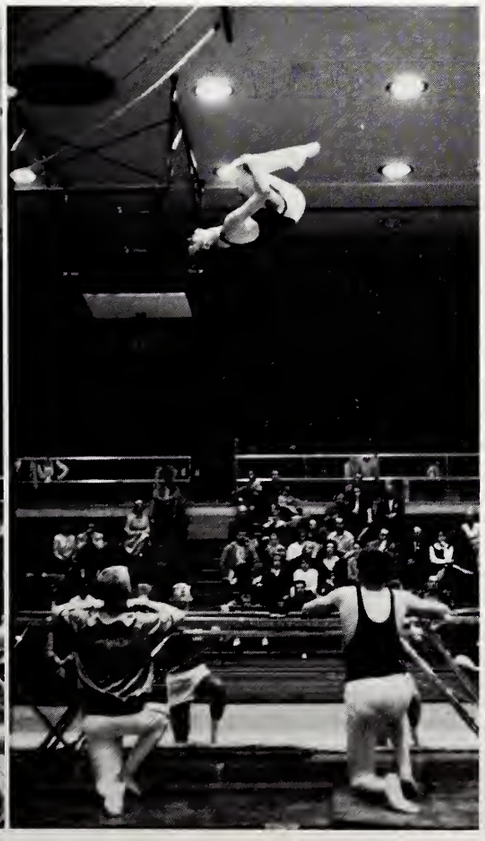
The 1964-65 gymnasts turned in the best record of their four year existence. Gymnastics, Warren's newest varsity sport, has become one of the most popular sports here, as the size of the team clearly shows. Each year since its beginning the team has shown remarkable improvement on its record. Coach Kassen attributes this year's fine record of eleven wins, two losses and one tie to the even balance of the squad.

Leading the way on the trampoline were Dan Thompson and Wendell Fowler. Contributing to the team effort with regular wins on the high bar were Denny O'Dell and Dave Hurt. Don Wilson proved to be a major power on the still rings as did Dwight Steele on the parallel bars. Dick Haynes, a polio victim in his childhood, in his first year of varsity sports showed himself to be a top contender on both the parallel bars and still rings. Dominating the floor exercise event was Mike Stow. John Scheck reigned over the side horse event. Dave Wade was high man in the all-around.

Seven members of the team qualified for the finals of the state meet and they eagerly anticipated improving the fourth place captured at last year's meet.

Junior Dick Haynes performs a planch on the parallel bars. A newcomer to the team this year, Dick overcame a polio handicap to become a top contender on the still rings and the parallel bars.





Warren's outstanding record on the trampoline this year may be accredited to the efforts of Dan Thompson and Wendell Fowler. Dan, a senior, and Wendell, a junior, spent much time perfecting their moves on the trampoline.

Experienced Tribesmen Hope for Brighter Season

Kirby Cummings watchfully awaits the ball during a practice session. Kirby is a third year regular in the Warrior infield.

The 1964 baseball team ended its season with a three won, eight lost record. Although the record was not too impressive, there were still a few high points. Jon Leavitt led the team with a .325 hitting percentage, followed closely by Tom Sponcil and Mike Schulz. Ronnie Steele turned in the finest pitching performance of the year when he threw a one-hitter against Manual for a 1-0 victory.

The Warriors played their best game of the '64 campaign against Washington High School. The Continentals were defeated by an aggressive Warren squad 4-3. The Warren nine also combined a fine hitting attack with Jim Cahill's pitching for a 5-1 victory over Beech Grove; but a late inning error cost the Warriors a victory from undefeated City-champ Cathedral. The Irish broke the game open in the sixth inning and won by a narrow 3-1 margin.

The 1965 season should be a successful one with nine returning lettermen. Ed Clemmer, Harry Preston, and Tom Limbach will be back to lead the pitching staff. All three have good experience and are hoping for a fine season.

Mike Baldwin, Stan Taylor, Bruce Ruster, and Kirby Cummings will be attempting to help the squad in the hitting department. Coach Foreman also feels that defense should be very strong. First baseman Stan Taylor and third baseman Kirby Cummings will be returning for their third year of varsity competition. Mike Baldwin will be returning at shortstop.

Track, Tennis Have Even Season; Both Finish Fourth

TRACK TEAM—(Front Row) Phil Ross, Alan Crapo, Robert Breeden, Jerry Arvin, Arnold McIntosh, Jon Cazee, Steve Smidley, Don Wilson, Bruce Little, Ron Robertson, David Spolyar, Jim Bacon, Bill Morgan, Steve Deiss, Mike Virt, Jim Faust, Tom Fennimore; (Middle Row) Harry Monroe, Rick Guyer, Jim Hogue, Bob Bailey, John Cochrun, Rodney Horton, Dave Young, Bill Carnes, Gary McDermid, Don Bonsett, Jim Randolph, Mike Hartman, Bill Arnold, Clyde Dodson, John Montgomery, Dan Scheck, John McNierny, manager; (Back Row) Roger Hinkle, Jim Horton, Janis Janelsins, Gunars Janelsins, Steve Stroeh, Steve Fischer, Herb Jewell, Greg Arnold, Tom Cochrun, Carl Stocker, Ed Smith, Ed Norcutt, Ron Breeden, Don Kassen, assistant coach; Dave Shaw, head coach; and Richard Yantis, manager.

Coach Dave Shaw's cindermen got off to a slow start in their 1964 season, losing their first two meets to Tech and Ben Davis. Once started, however, they finished the season with only two more losses, one to a fine Manual team and the other to Southport's county champions. The trackmen compiled a four win, four lost record in dual and triple meets and took fourth in the county meet.

High stepping Alan Crapo and Tom Cochrun, 1964 Warren graduates, dominated the hurdles for the Warriors while the fleet feet of John Woodburn, junior, reserved blue ribbons for the tribe in the dash department. Roger Hinkle, senior, and Ed Norcutt, junior, led the field in the 440-yard dash. Hinkle captured second place in the 440 for Warren in the county meet. Others boosting the Warren effort were Arnold McIntosh, John Cochrun, and Herb Jewell, who will be returning for the 1965 season.

Coach Shaw is looking forward to his fourth season as coach of the Warrior track team. Shaw regrets the loss of such strong men as shot-putter Steve Stroeh, dash-man Gunars Janelsins, and Roger Hinkle and Tom Cochrun; but he feels that the greater strength of his returning lettermen and the new material from the sophomore class will offset the loss. The tribe may look for mounting strength in distance races and in the field events.

in Marion County Play

Efforts of the racquetmen seem to be paying off, for the 1964 team turned in the best season record yet, with seven wins and seven losses. Warren finished fourth in the county last season, with Southport first, North Central second, and Lawrence third.

At the start of the season it looked good for Warren, as Rich Hotz, John Hilkene, and Chip Wieland were undefeated in single matches. About the toughest match the racquetmen played last season was at the Culver tournament where they competed against several schools. The only match won was by Rich Hotz and Chip Wieland.

Tennis season is different from other sports at Warren, since the team plays a round-robin schedule in which every team plays every other team. Tennis started here in 1961 and has been steadily increasing in popularity. This is illustrated by the appearance of tennis courts at Creston Junior High School. The junior high netters plan to have scheduled matches next year.

Mr. Alan Miedema, tennis coach for the first four years, took over as physical education teacher in the fall of 1964. He relinquished his position this year to a newcomer at Warren, Mr. Don Wasson. Mr. Wasson wants to develop an interest in the sport for the school by encouraging more athletes to go out for this sport. Besides being tennis coach Mr. Wasson is the new coach for the reserve basketball team.

Returning letterman, Rich Hotz, perfects his serve during an evening practice session on the Warren courts.

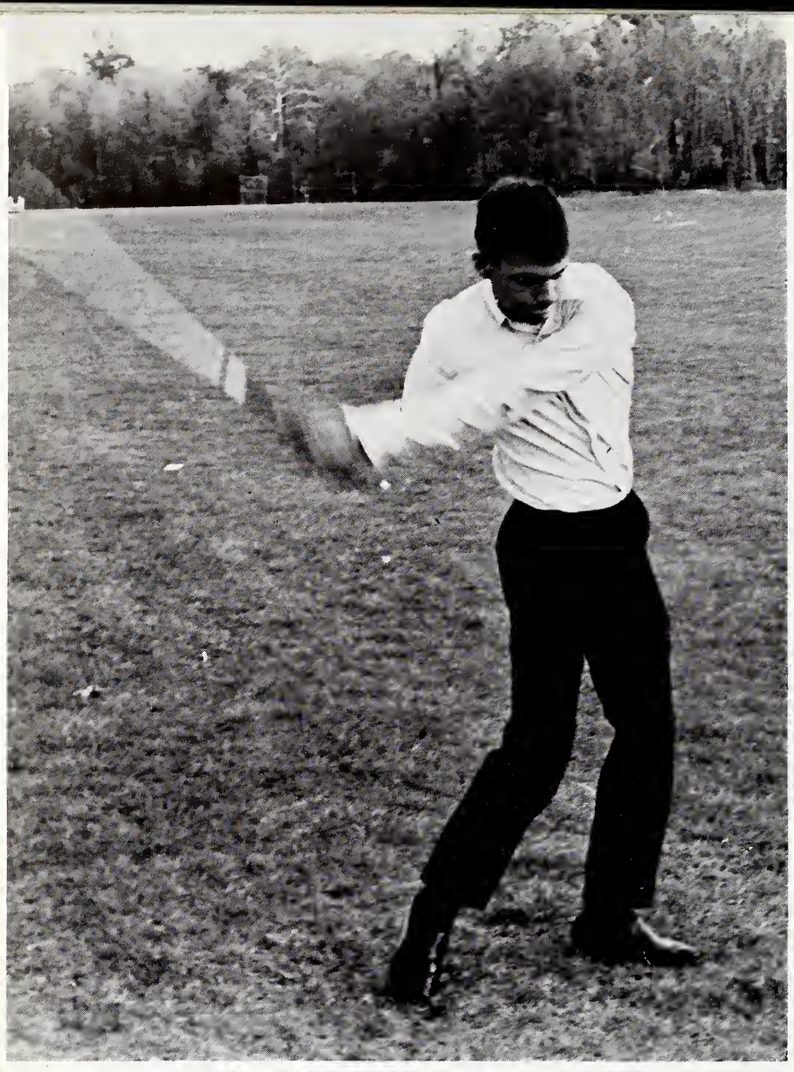
TENNIS TEAM—(Kneeling) Chip Wieland, Richard Hotz, Dale Klein, (Standing) Coach Alan Miedema, John Miller, John Hilkene and Tom Nidiffer comprised the 1964 tennis squad.



Jon Bayless displays the style that earned him the positions of team captain and 1964 City-Junior Golf Champion.

W. C. Golfers Complete

One sight every coach likes to see is that of many returning lettermen. These individuals bring to the team not only their skill but also their experience and maturity. This year coach Ron Roach will build his 1965 golf team around a hard core of returning lettermen.

Led by team captain Jon Bayless, who won the 1964 City Junior Open Golf Tournament, the 1965 golf team will be bolstered by seniors Ron Kottlowski, Bill Pert, Rick Falconbury and juniors Rusty Fleehearty and Steve Robbins. Ron Kottlowski was the low medalist for the team with an average of thirty-nine strokes for nine holes.

Five was the key number for the linksmen as they finished the season with a five won, five lost record and a fifth in the county standings behind Southport, North Central, Speedway, and Lawrence Central. During regular season competition, the Warriors crushed Pike, Washington, Franklin, Center Grove and Greenfield. The tribe suffered losses at the hands of Southport, North Central, Speedway, Greenfield and Carmel. Coach Roach describes the first three of these schools as being the greatest threats to Warren in the county.

The Warriors compete for twelve possible points in each match. One point is awarded to each player who has fewer total strokes than his opponent.

Five and Five Record

A basketball score of 8 to 6? Surely that can't be a varsity score. That's right, it isn't! This score is from a G.A.A. intra-mural basketball game. The Girls' Athletic Association, sponsored by the girls' physical education teacher, Mrs. Rosalind White, is an organization open to any Warren girl with a flair for sports, whether it be tennis, archery, basketball, volleyball, softball, bowling, or gymnastics.

The Girls' Athletic Association, which is in its tenth year at Warren, has a membership of 80-90 girls. The girls meet after school during the week for sessions in the gym, the baseball diamond, or the tennis courts. Every Wednesday afternoon, for two six-week sessions, the girls bowled under the instruction of Mrs. White and a professional bowler at the Play Bowl.

Intramural basketball games have also increased the popularity of G.A.A. Though most of the games are played after school in the gym, G.A.A. teams play other schools in various activities such as softball, volleyball, and basketball. These tournaments are held mostly for the fun of meeting other girls, exchanging ideas, and promoting good sportsmanship, not for the competition involved.

It's a jump ball during a G.A.A. basketball game after school (top). Gloria Althardt (below) bowls 'em over at Play Bowl Lanes in G.A.A. league competition. The girls bowled every Wednesday afternoon for about twelve weeks.

The 1964-65 officers of the Girls' Athletic Association were Jane Abrell, secretary; Deirdre Koby, treasurer; Deanna Webber, president; and Roberta Hessman, vice-president. Membership in G.A.A. has greatly increased over the past few years.

This is

Warren's World of PEOPLE

With every step we take and every word we say, we become a part of the profile of our school. Saying "Hi" thirty times in the hall between classes, cheering together at a ball game, explaining to a teacher why an assignment is late, talking politics in class—these distinct expressions on the face of Warren are reflected by the people who make up her world and ours.

Administrators Strive to Expand Opportunities

Vice Principal Obert E. Piety takes over the office reins when Mr. Cuddy is absent. Now in his tenth year at Warren, he came to us from Thorntown where he was Principal.

Students take their problems to Mr. Clifford Gates, dean of boys, and Mrs. Maude Siebert, dean of girls, who are always glad to help on personal problems as well as academic problems.

Principal Edward H. Cuddy works hard to maintain high educational standards and solve daily problems that frequently arise in his job.

Offered Warren Pupils

Principal Edward H. Cuddy proudly emphasizes that Warrenites have many advantages in being able to attend an accredited high school like Warren Central. For four years Warren has held a special first class commission from the State Department of Public Instruction. Only fourteen Indiana high schools claim this honor. Over 75 per cent of Warren's teachers hold masters' degrees, and the broad curriculum makes ours a comprehensive high school with a wide range of subject matter.

New ideas for Warren's improvement are gathered by Mr. Cuddy at monthly meetings of the Marion County Principals' Association. This year he served as Secretary Treasurer of the Indiana Association of Junior-Senior High School Principals.

Mr. Obert Piety, vice-principal, assists Mr. Cuddy on administrative details. He is responsible for supervising the IBM program which schedules homeroom, classroom, and lunch schedules for each student and teacher. He also co-sponsors the Student Council.

Mrs. Maude Siebert, dean of girls, and Mr. Clifford Gates, dean of boys, are jointly responsible for checking student attendance and behavior. Mrs. Siebert doubles as co-sponsor of the Student Council.

Mr. Austin E. Walker, superintendent since 1957, has contributed to the expansion of the township school system.

Checking over plans for a new school are members of the Warren Township Board of Education: Wayne Foster, President; Robert Anderson, Vice-President; Herbert Fall, Treasurer; Warren Timmerman, member; and Donald Dick, Secretary.

for Enrollment Boom

During the administration of Superintendent Austin E. Walker, seven new schools have been added to the Warren Township School District. To meet the rising enrollment the others were expanded or remodeled. Pleasant Run, Creston Junior High, and a new addition to Lowell were opened for the first time this year. Mr. Walker and the members of the Board of Education are also considering possible plans for a new high school in the near future.

Mr. Paul Jennett, head custodian, oversees a neat and clean school, while Mrs. Kathryn Turner, head cook, makes sure that an appetizing lunch program is carried out.

After the disaster to the Science and Math wing in February, the custodial staff and the teaching staff banded together to clean up the debris and water. The eleven custodians and two matrons worked from 17 to 18 hours a day while 82 teachers pitched in to help seven or eight hours each day the school was closed. Custodial staffs from other township schools were also pulled in to help. The entire kitchen staff of 21 cooks was busy from 6:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m. preparing meals for the workers.

Senior Officers Work

The 1965 Senior Class of Warren Central looks back on its achievements while it looks forward to the promise of success. At the present we enjoy the prestige and honor of being upperclassmen, even though we know it's what we do from now on that counts.

For three years we have been secure in our own world. We have cheered at 28 football games and 68 basketball games, including tournaments. Some of us have gone to 36 baseball games. We have elected 30 cheerleaders, 10 Student Council officers, and 16 queens, 6 from our own class. We have danced at 30 sock-hops, attended 324 club meetings, gone to 3,240 classes, and done 4,860 hours of homework. The important thing is what we do with everything we have learned in the time spent in these activities—It adds up to 8,432 hours. Some record, eh?

Junior Year Highlights

As our second year at Warren Central progressed, we awaited with anticipation the day of our Junior Prom at the Miramar Club. Even without our trying, before-prom and after-prom parties materialized. Dinners, breakfasts, and picnics filled schedules for the weekend. May 1, 1964, became the subject of many decisions. Shall my formal be blue or pink? Shall it be floor-length or short? What kind of flowers shall I get her? I wonder what the decorations will be like. Is it worth $3.00?

It was worth more than that! In the starlight of a perfect evening, Warrenites were lost in the wonder of a "May Mist." About 350 couples attended and danced to the music of The Showmen.

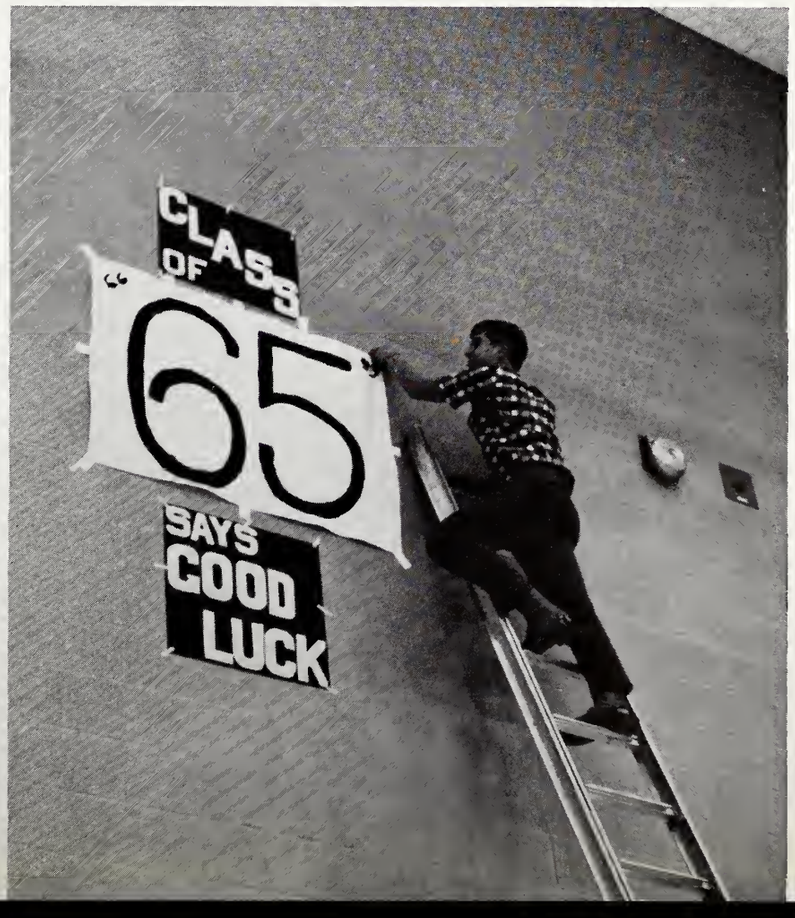
Craig Combs, who was responsible for the making of the class sign for the gym, climbs high up a ladder to hang the sign on the gym wall.



The junior year had more than the Prom. That year we had developed the calm assurance of veterans of WCHS. The class of 1965 got rolling through our Junior Council. Dwight Steele was class president; Rick Guyer, vice-president; Karen McKinney, secretary; and Harry Preston, treasurer.

When the time came to choose our class rings, we were sure we had the prettiest design ever. Since 1964 was a leap year we had a turnabout dance, "White Cats, Over Ladders" on Friday, March 13. Perhaps the highlight of that year was winning the basketball county championship. Some 500 fans welcomed the victorious Warriors at the bonfire afterwards. Then, Willet Fischer broke his arm at the Sectionals; but the team determined to give their best. Some of that determination we caught, for as seniors, we determined to make the best of the year 1965.

at Tourney, Sectionals

Before that, it was our sophomore year. Remember how lost we felt the first few days? How silly we felt at pep sessions when the upperclassmen screamed their yells, and silence fell when our turn was due? We learned much that year, including how to decorate derbies for the tourney. We were confronted with new subjects: geometry, world history, driver education, and home nursing. We soon learned that we could chew gum in some classes, but not in all. Outside school, dating and partying took on a more intensified schedule with the freedom of Senior High. We found that we had moved to a world filled with the responsibilities of figuring things out—with the reward for those who figured things correctly.

Bobbi Lambert, who entered Warren during her senior year, is shown by Donna Lawhorn the art of decorating tourney and sectional derbies.

Class Pictures Exchanged for Lasting Memories

Why do we have morning devotions at Warren? Why do we have class yells? When did they have the first Valentine Tea? We are often unaware of how or when a tradition gets started, but chances are that behind these Warren Central traditions was the leadership of one senior class or another. It is natural that the seniors should take the position of responsibility and leadership. We can remember when the tutoring system was started at Warren, during our junior year and enlarged this year. The success of this project can be found in a senior; and for his work, he is commended. For what will the members of our class be commended? It remains to be seen, but in the meantime we follow the tradition set by those before us. Among them are the exchanging of class pictures—which fatten our billfolds way beyond their intended size. In April we traded cards; afterwards we wondered what we'd do with the big stack we had.

Deanna Spoon and Steve McNeely exchange their senior pictures which they received, as most seniors did, at the first of the school year.

As we seniors end our last year of high school education, the choice of a career is ours to make. Will I go to college, to trade school, to business school, or join the armed forces? Once we have narrowed the field to one main area, we are faced with even more decisions. For those of us who will go to college is the question of whether we will pick a small college or a university, a liberal arts school or a more specialized one. If it's trade school, we must decide which one will best prepare us for the future. If the armed forces is in the picture, we contemplate the advantages and disadvantages of navy blue over army green. What ever our decisions, we all have one common advisor—our education.

John Woodburn and Harry Preston, two prospective college students, examine the bulletin board in front of the guidance office which displays facts about different colleges.

Seniors Learn Studying 'Tom Jones' and 'Lord Jim'

For every senior this year means fulfilling some educational requirement for the future. But something happened on February 8, that could have changed that future. What did we seniors think when we heard about the fire that swept our science wing? Perhaps we thought of the possibility of transferring to Howe, Arlington, or Lawrence to finish our school year. Would our class be split before graduation? We wondered at first whether it all was a big mistake of the radio stations. But when we realized that it was really our Warren to which the tragedy had come, we joined together in numbers to clean up the building because of our true respect to our school and our loyalty as seniors.

As a result of the fire and the two record snowstorms, Warrenites missed seven days of school. Although we greeted these vacations with delight, we worried about losing some of our senior week or spring vacation to make them up. Professional Day, however, was the only vacation we lost; the rest came in our grades.

Tom Yates leafs through a copy of "Tom Jones," one of the books which is required reading in his senior English class.

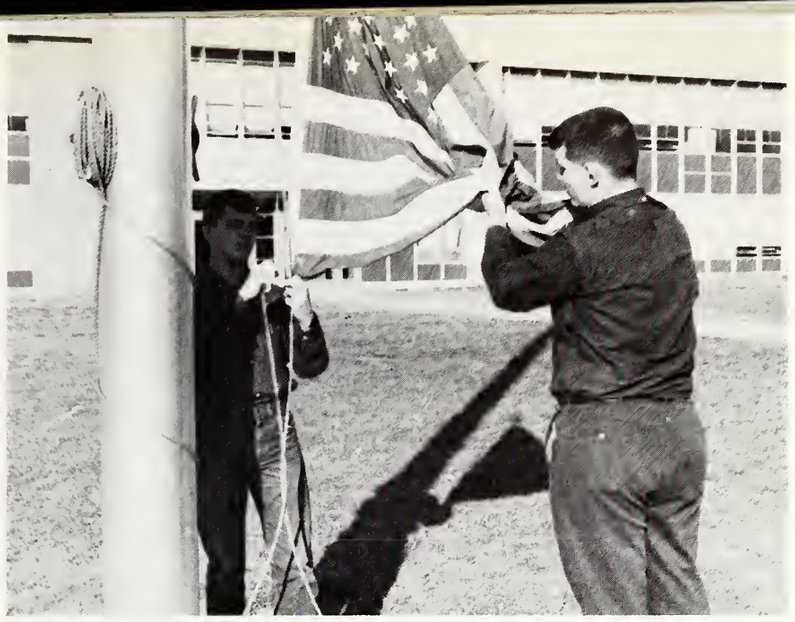
To a senior at Warren, remembering is looking back on the unique events of the past three years. In spite of all our complaining, homework has left time for out-of-school events. Completely mystifying to the guys are the slumber parties, when ten or fifteen girls deck themselves in pincurls and pajamas and shun every thought of slumber. The guys, however, have a similiarly mysterious ritual at midnight card parties. Places, too, became part of our lives outside of Warren. A black and gold license plate for a familiar sight at Frisch's or Knobby's after a big game. Saturday nights, of course, provided every-popular entertainment at such places as the Flame Club, the Shadeland, and downtown shows.



Marshall Eckert and Paul Shrader perform one of Warren's daily rituals by lowering the flag at the end of the day. These boys are responsible for raising and lowering the flag every school day before homeroom period.

Fad in. Fade out. Just as the twist was so popular a couple of years ago, the dog, the jerk, the frug, and the circle dance were the craze at sock hops this year. Although the number of enthusiastic Beatle fans has dwindled, popular acceptance of English singers in America has grown with the coming of Marianne Fairthful, the Searchers, Chad and Jeramy, and many others. Most popular here in Indianapolis were the Beachboys, the Kingsmen, and the Four Wheels.

Clothes this year have taken on a more collegiate look. Loafers, dark socks, and V-neck sweaters charmed many a Warren senior. Obsolete fads of the past were white socks, sneakers, and pegged pants. Also popular are the knee socks, patterned stockings, and shoulder bags. Pin stripes, madras, and Oxford cloth are "In" with both boys and girls. The puffy, teased hair-dos have been combed into straight, blunt-cut styles. The boys have let their crew-cuts grow into longer Princetons and Liverpudlians. "Cool", "Neat", and "Sharp" are words of this year that expressed the teenage lingo during our senior year.

Well, here we are in all our glory! This "mug shot" was taken in the gym after we had ordered our cards and announcements in the auditorium. The convo for ordering cards and announcements was one of two mass meetings of the entire senior class during the first semester. At the other convo, Mr. William Glesing, our class counselor, told us about the Scholastic Aptitude Test, how we were to sign up for it, and how not to go to the wrong "Howe." Since seniors have varied interests which take them many different direc-

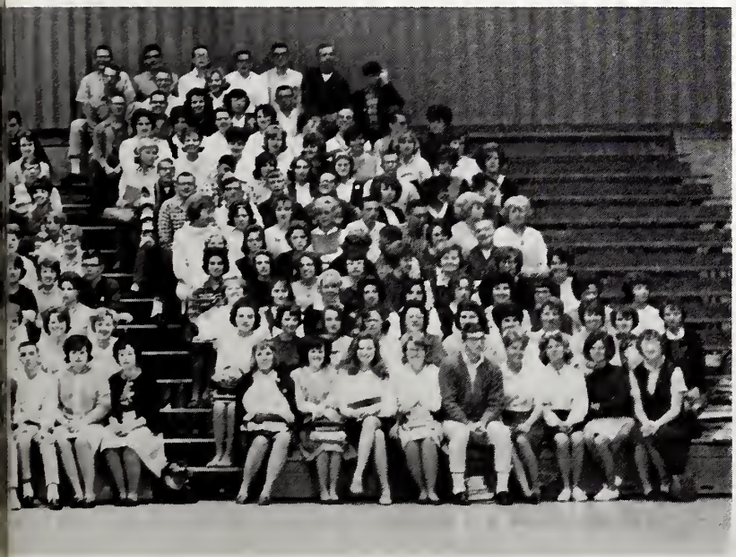
Graduation Brings Achievement, Mixed Emotions

Being a senior meant many things—meeting the added responsibilities, filling our federal income tax forms for government classes, having pictures taken at Max Galloway's, filling out college applications, picking a dress for the Senior Prom. Being a senior also required making many important decisions. The debate that accompanied our choosing of ivy blue and white for class colors turned out to be the hardest decision of the year. The "Fat Boy" helped us in choosing the style of our cards and announcements.

Perhaps the most helpful one to our class was Mr. Glesing. His calm advice during our vigorous differences in Senior Council meetings, his help in registering us for the college board tests, and his private counsel with us individually were just a few ways that he has shown his concern for us. These few instances are only part of the many memories our senior year meant to us, and only part of what we will remember as we say good bye to the best year yet — 1965.

Dressed in the caps and gowns of the class of 1965, Debbie Townsend and Ed Norcutt pause for a moment before entering the gym for their commencement exercises. The 1965 graduating class was the largest to ever leave Warren Central.

tions, getting the entire class together at one time was quite a job. Because of this, the few meetings were enjoyed much more than if the gatherings had been frequent. Although we encountered many challenges during our senior year, we'll never forget the good times.



Junior Class Chooses

Juniors came back to Warren last fall anticipating two events of the following year. This was the year of class rings and the Junior Prom!

Newly-elected class council members looked at displays of ring designs before choosing one. The Class of '66 ordered rings and then waited until February when the rings arrived.

Plans for the prom were begun. After several weeks of debate, it was decided to have the prom at school — the first in the new high school building. Juniors, on various committees, worked to make the prom the climax of the year.

Junior Council officers, Wendell Fowler, president; Karen Ellis, secretary; (standing), Lucy Prikaszczikow, vice-president; and Connie Cox, treasurer, discuss suggested proposals for the Junior Prom theme, "Stairway to the Stars."

Nancy Vice, who attended classes first semester over a telephone speaker, boasted an A average despite her disadvantage.

Unfamiliar Courses Begin Sophomores' 'Struggle'

With the opening of school this fall, upperclassmen served as guides to the largest sophomore class ever to attend Warren. Sophomores met familiar faces in some courses, such as geometry and physical education, while in others they enjoyed having juniors and seniors as classmates.

Sophomores, wary of upperclassmen's pranks, could not be persuaded to buy tickets to the esculator. They were rather doubtful, however, when told that they had become too grown-up for misconduct slips. After a period of orientation, sophomores became accustomed to school routine, joining juniors and seniors in both scholastic and extracurricular activities.

Sophomore Bob Randolph uses the Student Council tutoring program for individual guidance from classmate Bill Henderson.

This Is

Warren's World Of ADS

Our bookstore has a monopoly on this local market, but advertisements have to sell us on everything else—from tires to hamburgers. That makes ads pretty important to a Warrenite, who spends an average of $560 per year. Besides having influence on the purchases of our parents, we teens are establishing the buying habits and loyalties that will follow us to the future.

WHICH TWIN

HAS THE TRIMLINE?

The answer is "Both!" Karl Kriegsmann isn't seeing double. That's Pris and Pat Strane demonstrating the newest phone now in production at Western Electric. This attractive new telephone is the TRIMLINE with the dial in the handset. Compact design and ease of operation should mean wide use for the set in the business world and in the home. Warren visitors Pris, Pat, and Karl all have something in common. Their dads are employed at the sprawling Shadeland Avenue plant.

Album editor Kay Brown sorts through scores of underclass pictures for purposes of identification. One of the highlights of the year was the unveiling of the cover of the 1965 WIGWAM. Here the publication's three editors Judy Brown, Mary Schakel and Claudia Dille examine the newly disclosed cover. John Fouts, as advertising manager, spent many hours on the phone selling local businessmen space in the WIGWAM. Staff members kept busy most of the year, finishing 1965 or preparing for 1966.

Wigwam Staff Finds World Sometimes Wild and Wacky

WIGWAM staff members, posing as a local monster family, buy the first 1965 WIGWAM subscription in the skit presented in October.

Weary WIGWAMers, Mike Baldwin and Sharon Lesher, discover another block of copy to write while checking the "dummy pages" of the organizations section.

At last it's finished! We worked hard to capture memories of Warren's world in words and pictures.

The staff sincerely thanks Miss Dorothy Teal, our sponsor, and the faculty and administration of Warren for all the time and assistance they gave us. Mr. Larry Wells of Associates Engraving Company helped us with layout, and the assistance of Mr. Jack Bundy of the S. K. Smith Co. was invaluable in designing our cover. Representing the Benton Review Publishing Co. was Mr. David McConnell. Mr. Max Galloway helped us to meet our picture deadlines.

There was a lot to do. Sometimes it was fun, sometimes frustrating. But the end result was the greatest yearbook ever — the 1965 WIGWAM!
